

Workshops, performances scheduled

Northwest thespians meet tonight

Anti-theater disestablishment-theaterism and other positive anti-isms is the central theme of the Northwest Drama Conference scheduled to get under way at the University today.

In addition, the conference will bring to campus such celebrated guests as Agnes Moorehead, currently playing the role of Endora, a witch on television's "Bewitched" and Ron Davis, the part-founder and non-organizational head of the San Francisco Mime Troupe.

The conference, held each year under the sponsorship of the department of speech, is being organized and conducted this year entirely by the students. Howard Dallin, a graduate student in speech, is head of the organizing committee.

The three-day conference will also feature some new attempts at integrating delegates into the arts. On Friday afternoon an improvisational "happening" is scheduled for the Gerlinger Hall dance studio. Everyone is invited, but those who come must participate.

Everyone will improvise dance and drama to improvisational music in an "environmental art" setting prepared by Ric Millward, a fine arts major.

Miss Moorehead will make two appearances Saturday during her stay in Eugene. The first will be in the morning during a conference workshop at the University Theater and the second in the evening when she will perform a one-woman show called "An Intimate Evening with a Fabulous Redhead." The performance will

Student court imposes sanctions

The Student Court re-imposed and added two more hours of work sanction on a freshman and placed another student on disciplinary probation until the end of this academic year during Tuesday's hearings.

The defendant in the first case was found guilty of failure to comply with a work sanction. He was found guilty by minor court last December of keeping a dog in the dorm.

The defendant in the second case pleaded guilty of academic cheating or plagiarism. The prosecution recommended to the court that the defendant be put on two terms of probation because of past precedents.

The defense in this case said there was no intentional plagiarism. He said the student, from Holland, cited all his sources in his paper.

The defendant received admonition and warning from the court and was placed on academic probation for the remainder of the academic year.

Registration has been limited to 500 delegates this year, according to Dallin, because "there were about 1,000 delegates last year and we couldn't handle them." There is a $5 fee for attending. Most delegates will represent colleges and universities from around the Northwest.

Also included in the conference will be workshops conducted by Davis, Ted Kraus, editor of the Critical Digest in New York, and Ken Gaburo, an author, composer and choral director whose play, "In the Can" is currently in rehearsal at the University Theatre for a regularly scheduled production.
