

Committee formed to select new coach

The University formed another committee this weekend, but this one might be one of the most unique college committees in the country. The committee will be an administration-student committee formed to participate in the selection of a new head football coach. It holds its first meeting this morning.

ASUO President Iain More proposed the idea of such a committee to Athletic Department head, Norv Ritchey, as an attempt to get the ASUO involved in the coach-selection process.

Ritchey said that the membership of the committee had not been finalized, but that Dean Robert Bowlin, head of the intercollegiate athletic committee, would be chairman. "I think Bowlin has invited a number of people to the meeting. I think, that at the meeting, the composition of the committee will be decided," Ritchey said.

More admitted the committee, which will be composed of administration figures, members of the football team and students, is an unusual method of selecting a coach.

More indicated that he and Ritchey had agreed to aim for next Monday as final date to make a selection.

State Board to meet

The on-going financial emergency will be the main topic of discussion when the State Board of Higher Education meets today in Portland.

The Board will hear progress reports from individual schools in the system pertaining to budget cuts made necessary by projected state deficits.

In other business the Board will hear reports on married student housing and tuition policies.

A public hearing has also been scheduled on proposed changes in the Board's investment and endowment procedures.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. in the Michael Smith Memorial Center on the Portland State University campus.

Sprague named association head

Vernon Sprague, head of the Department of Physical Education for Men at the University, has been named president-elect of the National College Physical Education Association for Men.

He was elected at the group's 75th Annual Conference, held Jan. 9 through 12 in New Orleans, La. Sprague will serve as president of the NCPEA for the 1973-74 academic year.

Sprague, who has been at the University since 1946, has been active in the NCPEA since 1952. During this period, he has served as an officer and member of working committees. He has been a member of the Executive Council for the past year and will continue in that position until 1974. He has also been active in the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation and other professional associations.

Gravel to speak on campus

U.S. Sen. Mike Gravel (D-Alaska), will tour Oregon today through Friday with a scheduled stop at the University Thursday.

Gravel will be in Oregon to campaign for the presidential candidacy of Sen. Edmund Muskie (D-Maine).

While in Eugene, Gravel will speak to a political science class at Lane Community College at 9 a.m., the full student body at 10 a.m., and hold a news conference at 11 a.m. before speaking to the Lane Demo Forum.

In the afternoon he will address a University audience at 3 p.m. in the EMU Ballroom.

Gravel was elected to the Senate in 1968 after defeating incumbent Sen. Ernest Gruening in the primary.

Speech student voted best all around

Sometimes it's the little things which mean the most. And one small award will probably be one of Jim DeWitt's best memories of his college career, because it reflects the esteem of his classmates.

Jim, a University senior speech major, was voted the best all-around student in one of his speech classes. Criterion for the selection was the person who not only did the best technically, but who the students felt they had learned the most from, and who had contributed most to the class.

The subject of the course, taught by Bower Aly, was History and Criticism of American Speeches. So as a memento of his achievement, DeWitt was presented with a copy of a book on speechmaking along the Missouri frontier, "Stump, Bar and Pulpit" by Frances McCurdy. The book, donated by Barre Toelken, professor of English at the University, was presented in a small ceremony on Jan. 14. Another member of the class, Herb Cawthorne made the presentation.

Cadets to attend conference

Army ROTC Cadet William Nelson and Air Force ROTC Cadet Douglas Welch from the Department of Military Science and Aerospace Studies of the University, have been selected to attend the 50th Annual Reserve Officers' Association (ROA) Conference.

This conference will be the first in which a large number of 250 ROTC cadets will participate. These cadets have been selected to attend the Department of Defense and ROA two-day conference on Feb. 24 and 25 in Washington, D.C.

Representing the various ROTC detachments on the college and university campuses of the nation, the students will come together to exchange views with such national leaders as Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, members of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and the national officers of ROA.
