McGovern wins preference poll

Democrat George McGovern and Republican Paul McCloskey are University students' presidential preferences according to the ASUO Presidential Preference Poll.

According to Larry Salmony, ASUO vice-president, 1,312 students, about eight per cent of the student body, voted in the ASUO Winter Primary Election last Thursday and Friday. The presidential preference poll was part of the senate primary election.

McGovern won the poll with 495 votes. Muskie followed in the Democratic party with 120 votes.

McCloskey topped President Richard Nixon for the Republican nomination with 185 votes. Nixon fared relatively well though receiving 111 votes.

Well-loved Mickey Mouse also made a showing receiving nine write-in votes.

In the Senate primary 54 students raced for places on the general election ballot. The two candidates receiving the most votes for their position will have places on Thursday and Friday's general election ballot.

Duane Bruhn and Fred Loveys, candidates for senator-at-large position no. 4 both withdrew prior to the primary. Maximilian "Mac" McLennan's name was scratched from Off-campus no. 9 because there was no such student registered, Salmony said.

Write-in candidate Ron Merrill is eligible for Off-campus no. 9 on the general election ballot. Write-ins must file with the ASUO main office by 5 p.m. Monday if they wish their name to appear on the final ballot. Salmony said.

Total number of students voting: 1315.

OSU campus curfew lifted

CORVALLIS — Oregon State University President Robert MacVicar announced Sunday that the 10 p.m. campus-wide curfew will be lifted as of tonight and all buildings will be open until their normal closing hours.

MacVicar also said, "Until the university is able to recruit and train the additional security force personnel that will be needed to increase campus patrols, particularly during the hours of darkness," state and local law enforcement agencies will continue their patrols through and around the campus.

Although MacVicar is making an attempt to "move toward normal operations," security precautions put into effect in the dormitories after the murder of Nancy Wyckoff, two weeks ago, will be continued, including "round the clock supervision of all units (dormitories)," he said.

Oakley Glenn, director of campus security, said he expected to discuss the increased patrols in the dormitory areas on this campus today with University officials.

Faculty to pay library fines

Beginning spring term, University faculty will be subject to a fine of $1 per day per item on library materials not returned to the library within five days after being called in.

University Librarian Carl Hintz said last Wednesday this decision was made "in an effort to encourage the prompt return of all types of library materials recalled from faculty when needed by other borrowers."

Currently, faculty members are not subject to a fine for not returning library materials on recall. Students are already subject to the $1 per day per item fine.

Head Circulation Librarian Claire Meyer said Sunday that, in the past, faculty members "haven't been subject to any kind of pressure" to return materials on recall other than a call to a member's department head or dean.

This new policy takes effect on the first day of spring term, Wednesday, March 29. The maximum fine on each item will be $10, Hintz said.

All library fines collected go into the general fund of the State System of Higher Education.
