

Supper club lease extended

The Laurelwood Supper Club, location of the KZEL show "Art Pearl vs. The World" and doomed by the city since last winter, has been given a stay of execution until June 11 of this year.

At Monday night's City Council meeting, council members granted an extension of 60 days to Dorothy Johnson, proprietor of the Laurelwood Supper Club, 2700 Columbia St., before she must vacate the premises. Ms. Johnson's lease from the city expired during the summer of 1971.

When the original lease ran out, the council recommended to Ms. Johnson, who has leased the club for six years, that she develop a set of standards to make the club compatible with the residential neighborhood. After further consideration of the club's late closing hours and the many complaints of late night noises coming from the club, the council later gave her 90 days to move out. That extension ended Monday.

Ms. Johnson's attorney, Hale Thompson, requested an additional 90-day extension to allow his client to liquidate her debts and to give her enough time to get a transfer of her liquor license to another building, possibly in Springfield.

After debate and testimony from citizens, both pro and con, the council compromised and gave Ms. Johnson an extra 60 days with the hope that she make arrangements to curtail the noise and commotion that aroused her neighbors to dissent originally.

City Manager Hugh McKinley had remarked at an earlier meeting that it hoped to find an operation to go into the Laurelwood building which will be compatible with the golf course facility.

Faculty group attacks forced budget cuts

A second statement attacking the forced budget cuts in the State System of Higher Education has been released by a faculty group.

The Interinstitutional Faculty Senate (IFS) unanimously adopted a resolution at a meeting held recently in Eugene which charged the cuts have "forced unwise educational decisions." Their statement also warned against the use of "existing retrenched and weakened circumstances" in future budget planning.

Wednesday, the University faculty passed an AAUP-AFT sponsored resolution stating that "a rational reordering of priorities which would enjoy the confidence of the faculty has not been possible in the time allowed." The resolution also asked for a statewide reordering of educational priorities and emergency reinstatement of funds cut.

The IFS resolution also requests State System Chancellor Roy Lieuallen to begin a "prompt and adequate study" of priorities within the state system" and that "faculty and student perspectives be included as basic parts of such a study."

Lieuallen was unavailable for comment on the resolution Wednesday, but state system Vice Chancellor for Administration Freeman Holmer said without the IFS identifying "specific unwise educational decisions, it's rather hard to react in any specific way."

Community

Outdoor leadership class offered

An outdoor leadership seminar will be offered at Westmoreland Community Center from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. on April 18 and 25. The $2 course will provide practical information for individuals planning to lead others in the outdoors, such as heads of households and scout leaders.

Participants should bring writing materials and come prepared to share problems encountered in the outdoors.

Registration is now being taken at Eugene Parks and Recreation office in City Hall or may be completed by mailing in the fee, name of the participant and class desired.

City Parks Department to sponsor hike

Registration is now open at Eugene Parks and Recreation Department for a spring hike up Hardesty Mountain on Sunday. Hardesty Mountain is near Lookout Point Reservoir about 35 miles from Eugene.

Hikers for the seven-mile round trip should be prepared with rain gear, lunch, canteen, sturdy shoes or hiking boots. Fee of $3 per person or $5 per family should be paid at Eugene Parks and Recreation office in City Hall by 5 p.m. Friday.

Transportation should be provided by participants, although some transportation will be available for an additional $1 charge. The group, led by Doug Newman, will leave Sheldon Meadow Community Center, 2445 Willakenzie Rd., at 8 a.m. on Sunday and return about 5 p.m.

Oregon Girls Conference to be held

"What the World Needs Now" will be the theme explored by approximately 150 girls from all over Oregon during the Oregon Girls Conference April 14, 15, 16 at the Boy Scout Training Center Lodge, Portland. Sponsored by Church Women United of Oregon, the three-day "celebration" will be presided over by Ms. Pat Bogue, Portland.

All high school and college age girls, 10th graders and up, of different denominations and races are invited to attend and participate.

Further information and registration material can be obtained by writing to Ms. Richard Nelson, 3609 S.E. Malden St., Portland, Oregon, the Registrar.

Deadline nears for WICHE internships

The deadline is almost here for applications to be submitted to the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE) Summer Intern Program. Applications, which are available from department heads, student organizations, and the OSPIRG chapter here, should be submitted by Monday, April 17, according to WICHE.

The internships last twelve weeks during the summer, and pay tax-free stipends of $75 to $95 per week plus travel, depending on year in school, marital status, and housing needs.

The WICHE internships are available to entering juniors through students who will have finished graduate school this spring. Students will be notified of acceptance by May 8, according to WICHE.

Bicycle races scheduled

The Third Annual Eugene Cycling Championships scheduled for Sept. 24, in Skinner Butte Park, has tentatively been selected as one of the West Coast races sanctioned by the Amateur Bicycle League of America.

Ernest Drapela of Eugene Parks and Recreation Department announced that officials have tentatively selected the Eugene race, two races in the Los Angeles area and one in the San Francisco area for competition. The races will be among the top 12 in the nation sponsored by ABLA.

Last year, the 1971 Eugene Cycling Championships attracted top flight racers from Canada and California with a $1,000 prize list. Planning for the 1972 race will aim to increase the prize list in order to attract cyclists returning from the Olympic Games in Munich.

Summer training races on the Skinner Butte course are scheduled for June 4, July 16 and Aug. 20. Events are planned for boys, girls, men and women with a variety of experience and skill. For further information contact Eugene Parks and Recreation office in City Hall.
