

Special interest groups face HPUP at hearing

The Hearing Panel on University Priorities (HPUP) will hold two hearings Saturday morning and a deliberative session Saturday afternoon.

The hearings will deal with the Office for Affirmative Action (OAA), and the Graduate Student Employees Association (GSEA). OAA's hearing, sponsored by the Status of Faculty Women committee, will last from 10:30 a.m. to noon, and the GSEA hearing will last from 8:30 a.m. to 10 a.m.

The two hearings will not deal with individual budget units, as previous HPUP hearings have done. OAA and GSEA filed requests for hearings by the April 6 deadline as special interest groups, and HPUP approved their requests.

The Saturday afternoon deliberative session will deal with the School of Librarianship, and three written rejoinders received by HPUP. It will begin at 1 p.m.

Both the morning hearings and the afternoon deliberative session will be held in the Johnson Hall conference room, and are open to the public.

HPUP has been assigned by University President Robert Clark to recommend to him where to cut the University's 1972-73 budget by $1.5 million.

Annual Pow-Wow Indians gather for events

About 300 Indians are expected to participate in a Pow-Wow that begins today. The Pow-Wow will continue through tomorrow at the Lane County Fairgrounds and is sponsored by the Native American Student Union (NASU).

Pow-Wow events will run from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. and will consist of several types of dancing including competition war dances, hoop dances and group dancing with about $1940 to be given away in dance prizes and as raffle prizes.

Indian tribes which will be performing in the Pow-Wow are the Tolowas, from California, the Siletz from the Oregon coast, the Coyotes from the Klamath Falls area, and the Kiowas from Washington, according to Vicki Partfasa, NASU secretary. Pow-Wow events Saturday will run from 2 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The Pow-Wow is open to the public with admission set at $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children under 12.
