The President de-briefs his cabinet in preparation for his 5:30 State of the University Address. (Table ash-trays optional at minimal handling costs).

As President-for-a-day, you have the option of giving either an acceptance or a resignation speech. Orate your way into the minds and hearts of your people. Sharpen your rhetorical skills and have photos to prove it.

The most prized possession of your Presidential Packet (and perhaps of your lifetime), this important document tells the story of your college career as well as your past Presidential stature. (The transcript feature of the President-For-A-Day packet is optional and may be substituted for the text of an anti-war speech written by real professionals employed by our sister company, Famous Writer's School. This will prove to be invaluable to those seeking work with progressive employers.

During his day as Commander and Chief, our President will have at his disposal, the army of culinary workers who help to keep the (student) Union strong. Here, our President grabs a free burgerbasket fit for a king (which he truly is) and heads to the basement for a free line of bowling and a little R & R.

Boy, it's been a day, but it sure has been worth it. Your day as President, and, more specifically, your Presidential Packet, is sure gonna help ya get a job (and God knows, you need every break possible in this day and age.) This photo is sure gonna bring back the memories in a few years. We will include an additional "mini-copy" in all '73 models which will be suitable for framing in your first-lady's favorite brooch.

One of the most lasting memories of your day as President is the souvenir envelope addressed to "President of Student Body." This bit of memorabilia will be valuable in a few years, when the in-laws start speculating what the letter was about. (international postmark optional)
