Olympic banners to be exhibited

Twenty-six nylon banners representing the major Olympic events will be on exhibit at the University's Museum of Art beginning Thursday at 8:00 p.m., when a special opening will be held in conjunction with the opening day of the Olympic trials.

The banners, designed by Canadian artists for the Olympic Pavilion of Montreal Expo '67, symbolize such sports as rowing, judo, sailing, basketball, swimming and diving, figure skating, ice hockey, wrestling, skiing, and others. The track and field banner will be featured in honor of the sports events being held at the Olympic trials in Eugene.

The designs for the banners were taken from actual photographs of Olympic athletes in action. The completed set of banners are each three by six feet.

The banners were donated to the Museum of Art by Thomas Gunkelman, Fargo, North Dakota who owns the only complete set of the Olympic banners.

Free recital set for Wednesday

Dorothy Bergquist, soprano, will give a recital at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the University Music School Recital Hall.

Bergquist graduated from the Manes College of Music in New York City. Her husband, Peter Bergquist, is a member of the Music School faculty at the University.

Accompanying Bergquist on the piano will be Robert Edwards, Eugene, who recently received his Doctorate of Musical Arts from the University.

Bergquist will sing selections from Felix Mendelssohn, Anton Webern, Alban Berg, and Hugo Wolf.

The public is invited to the recital free of charge.

Aid for scientific research given

Carolyn M. Cross, a University student, has been given a grant to aid scientific research by the Society of the Sigma Xi, according to the chairman of the society's Grants-In-Aid Research Committee, Harold Cassidy.

Cross' study is entitled "Environmental, habitat, and biotic factors affecting the growth and reproduction of Cystoseira osmundacea, an algae."

"Sigma Xi each year makes a number of grants to promising scientists at critical points in their research careers," stated Cassidy in making the announcement.

He continued, "We recognize that many needs are relatively too small for the large foundations to consider, yet to the scientist himself the need may be critical. It is to meet these needs that our research fund is maintained."

Ramsey Lewis to play concert

A special concert, "Trackin' & Truckin' Sounds of '72," will be presented at the University Monday.

The event will star The Jerry Butler Revue, featuring Brenda Lee Eager, Peaches, and the Ice-Man Band.

Special guest star will be Ramsey Lewis and the Ramsey Lewis Trio.

Trackin' & Truckin' Sounds of '72 will be at 8:45 p.m. in McArthur Court. Tickets are now on sale at the main desk of the Erb Memorial Union and Crystal Ship. Proceeds from the concert go into the special fund maintained by the MANA Foundation, Inc., non-profit education organization at the University to assist economically disadvantaged students; to provide for extra-curricular activities that enhance the educational experience for these students; to provide academic achievement grants; and to establish a contingency fund for emergencies, such as travel due to family sickness or death.
