BURN

starring

MARLON BRANDO

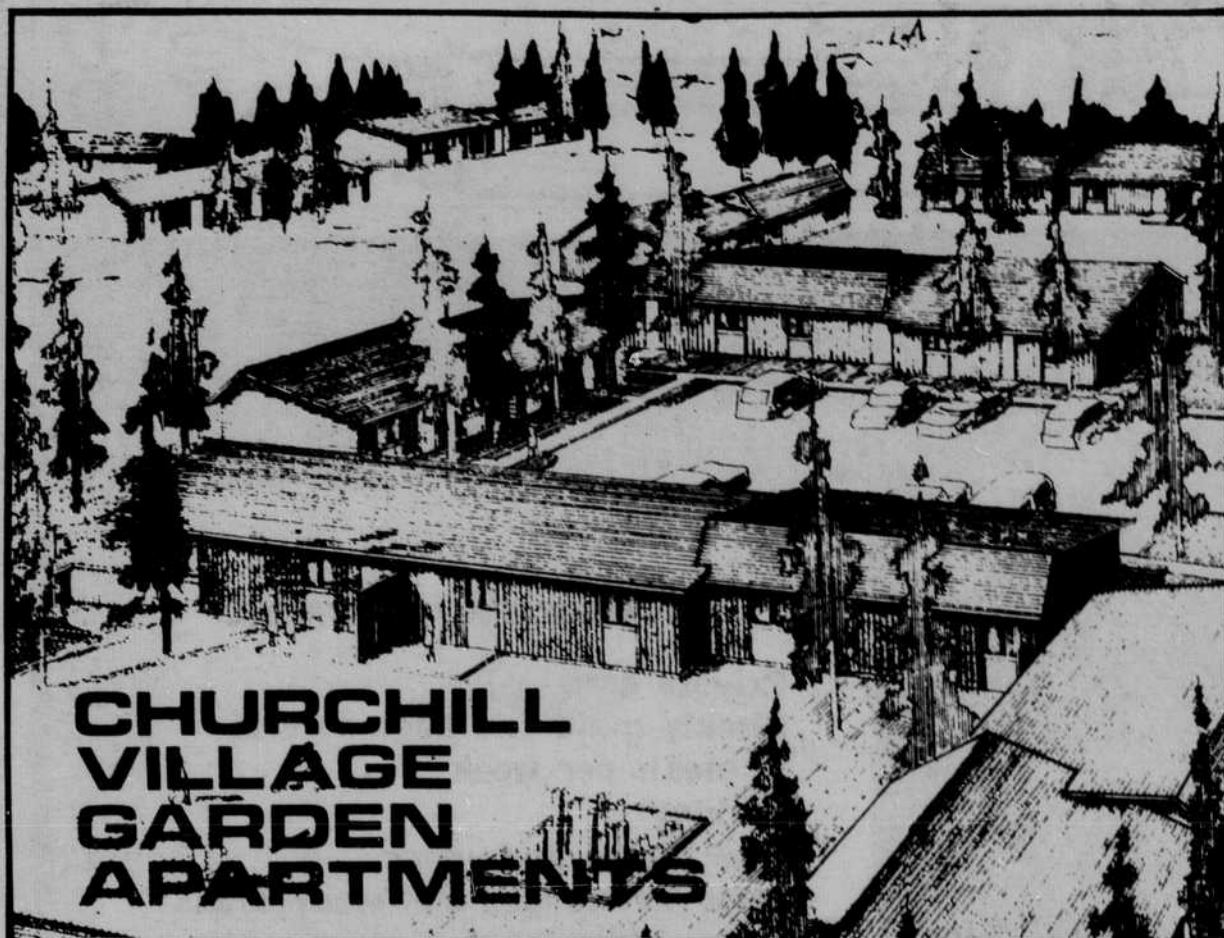

Written and directed by Gillo Pontecorvo. Although done for Hollywood, this film may be the equal of Pontecorvo's Battle of Algiers in its portrayal of revolutionary agony and passion. The story of a colonial uprising in the 18th century. Brando stars as a British agent sent to destroy the Portuguese sugar trade and to crush the Black struggle for independence. Because of its star, its director and its extremely effective message this film has been suppressed by Hollywood. After a very short commercial release without publicity in 1970 it has virtually been withdrawn from distribution.
