Lacrosse

Lacrosse is so big on the East Coast that television stations can cover the championship games and many schools actually charge admission to the contests. Why even a guy named Jim Brown once made the All-America team before he dropped down to make a name for himself in football.

You will probably never see an Oregon Duck on the all-star team but you may see an all-star or two wearing the green or white shirt of Oregon. Last year one of Princeton's greats played for us as he attends grad school here and you never know who else will turn out from nowhere. Whoever turns up with such a reputation though is sure to be practicing right beside somebody else who never saw a stick until he came to Eugene. That is the type of team we have here.

State cars will carry the team as far east as Salt Lake City, south to the Bay Area and north to Seattle and Portland as the season progresses. There is also a possibility of an exhibition game at Autzen following one of the football games.

The player investment here is about $15 for a stick and the price of a pair of soccer shoes. Pads and helmets as well as uniforms are provided by the club.

Bill Woodward and Rich Kinney will provide coaching skills as they have for the past few seasons.

Water Polo

Once a spring sport, water polo has almost turned into a fall event here as last year the team played more than they did in the spring, making trips into a playing respectively in California where the sport was born.

There are both A and B teams here and each is open to anyone strong enough to tread water for the six minute periods and swim around with the ball.

Since coach Chuck Hoerner is also hoping for better officiating in the region there is also a fine opportunity available for those interested enough in the sport and-or money to devote some time to learning how to make the calls. Hoerner has the ability and desire to arrange a good training program in the area.

Here all equipment is supplied by the team and the players need only the time to devote a few evenings a week to the team play practices.

The A team plays a heavy schedule of games up and down the Coast while the B team plays the Oregon teams which have seconds available to put in the water, plus an occasional first team as well.

Rodeo

After a brief trial period Oregon added some buckaroos to its program this year. All riders are eligible for competition with the team and novices are welcomed as well. For more information on this program stop by the Club Sport office when school gets under way.

Sailing

Tom Borman and Guy Snyder will skipper yet another new club which has navigated its way into the program. The sailing club will be equipped with three 14-footers as the year opens up and old hands and land lubbers will be welcomed aboard alike as the teams sets sail on its maiden voyage.

Here again stop by the EMU for more information.
