

EMU tree, dead or alive?

If you've passed by the EMU recently and noticed what appeared to be a dying tree in a box, don't worry, according to Lane County Nursery the tree is just going dormant for the winter.

The 55-foot tall, 17-inch thick Pin Oak was transplanted by Lane County Nursery on Sept. 22 for a fee of $1,000. In the last four days it has turned from a very live green to a very dead brown.

"I've been kind of biting my nails," EMU Director Dick Reynolds said before being reassured by the nursery. "It changed from green to gold on top and then to dead brown in just a few days," he added.

When contacted Monday evening, Merrill Jensen of the nursery said, "It's normal that it would lose its leaves, it's going through quite a shock." According to Jensen all Pin Oaks are turning brown at this time of year.

Asked if he was relieved that the tree was normal, Reynolds replied, "You bet!"

Expels two senators ASUO Senate ok's IUS salary

By GORDON MacCRACKEN
Of the Emerald

The ASUO Senate passed a majority of the fiscal appropriations on its agenda Thursday night. The senate's largest distribution of funds was a $945 allocation to the Inter-Institutional Union of Students for a nine month's director's salary of $105 per month.

The senate, meeting in 101 EMU, also approved a request by the Black Student Union to transfer money from a fund for executive salaries to a fund for work-study positions, allocated $290 to the Canterbury Center for its class and referral program and distributed $380 to Women in Law for a conference to be held in Eugene Oct. 20 through Oct. 22.

The senate fiscal committee's recommendation of $50 to the Willamette Student Housing project was turned down in favor of a $350 grant for three month's director's salary and $35 incidental fees.

A motion to allocate $1,500 to the Ridestop hitchhiking project was tabled, and a $750 grant to Action now was turned down.

The senate, which convened 25 minutes late after waiting for a quorum to be present, censured and expelled senators Joe Buchea and John Winkelman for three consecutive unexcused absences.

A resolution endorsing the activities of the Oct. 14 Coalition, introduced by senator Bob Reno, was passed by the Senate, and several by-law changes were sent back to the senate governing committee following a long discussion on the general subject of by-laws.

A governing committee memorandum concerning substantive and non-substantive committees was also passed.

Peace emphasized by Brigade

"Let there be peace on Earth, and let it begin with me", is the motto of the Eugene Peace Brigade and the focus of a meeting held Monday in the EMU and attended by eight people. Discussion centered around ways in which people could protest the Vietnam war without being hypocritical.

The representatives of the Peace Brigade felt that anyone who speaks against the war, yet supports the large corporations and the government who are supporting the war, is not truly protesting it, but are being hypocritical.

Three methods of protesting the war were brought forth and discussed. First, the Brigade feels, people must stop supporting the large corporations. Secondly, income tax should not be paid. Finally, people should refuse to fight in the war.

It was also brought out that people should learn to live simply and peacefully. Various methods for living cheaply, without supporting the war, were presented to the audience and discussed.

Breaking down barriers was brought up as an important part of living peacefully. Sharing, making music, dancing and helping others were mentioned as good methods.

Reducing addictions was also encouraged, and two mentioned by Krumdeik were, "Transportation - getting out of the car syndrome, and getting rid of the television."

Spiritual peace was mentioned as a necessary part of peace, both personal and international.

The Peace Brigade held the meeting as part of the week's activities sponsored by the October 14 Coalition, of which they are a member. Further activities are planned for the week, culminating in a demonstration Saturday.
