On Campus

New student union to be considered

There will be a meeting today at 1:30 p.m. in 315 EMU for all interested representatives from undergraduate departmental student unions. This is concerning the feasibility of and potential for the formation of an interdepartmental student union. Contact Teunis Wyers (Sociology) 686-3803 or Douglas Rake (Anthropology) 343-5694.

Candidate's ballot slogan omitted

ASUO vice-president Fred Loveys has announced that a ballot slogan for Thomas Hartfield, running for at-large senator number 1 in the ASUO elections today and Tuesday, was inadvertently omitted from the ballot.

The slogan, according to Loveys, should read, "Legalize beer and marijuana on campus, get concerts back to Mac Court."

Ombudsman sessions start today

The University chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) will hold ombudsman sessions for students and faculty of the University starting Monday, Nov. 13.

Volunteer members of the AAUP chapter will take daily shifts from 2 to 5 p.m. in 117 EMU to attempt to solve some of the problems faced by individuals in a growing university.

Grace Graham, professor of education, is coordinator of the experimental project. Both the Associated Students of the University and the EMU are cooperating in the project, she said.

Grants offered for Chinese majors

Five scholarships at $100 each will be available for students majoring or intending to major in Chinese. Selections will be made by the end of the Fall term. Judgment will be based on scholastic distinction and financial need. Interested persons may contact Prof. Palandri at the Department of Classics and of Chinese and Japanese.

The grantor is Roger Hong (class '65) of Portland, and was Prof. Palandri's student of Chinese ten years ago.

Ecology topic of talk

Rezneat Darnell, coordinator for the United States of the Task Force for the Conservation of Fresh-water Ecosystems, set up as part of the International Biological Program, will speak today at 4:30 p.m. in Room 123 Science on the topic "Natural Area Preservation". The public is invited.

Darnell is Professor of Oceanography and Biology at Texas A. & M. University.

OSPIRG seeks directors

Applications are now available in the O.S.P.I.R.G. office, EMU Room M-111, for those students interested in a position on the O.S.P.I.R.G. local board of directors. The positions are open to all students and shall be decided in a general election concurrent with the A.S.U.O. elections, Nov. 20-21.

The deadline for receiving the applications is Wednesday, Nov. 15, 1972.

'Floating Campus' lecture slated

Experiences as teachers on "World Campus Afloat" and observations on the state of education and communications processes in places visited while on cruise will be related by Thomas and Joy Bailing in a public lecture Monday, Nov. 13, at the University.

The informal lecture, which will be illustrated with slides, will be at 2:30 p.m. in Studio B of the Audio-Visual Media Center, basement level, University Library.

The Ballingers will discuss their experiences as members of the Africa-Asia cruise of World Campus Afloat during Spring Semester, 1972. World Campus Afloat is a project of Chapman College and Orange County, California.

On the cruise, Professor Ballinger, acting head of the Department of Art Education of the University's School of Architecture and Allied Arts, taught art history. Mrs. Ballinger taught linguistics and served on the library staff of the shipboard university. Part of their dialogue will concern the libraries visited on the cruise and the challenge of library service on board a ship.

The program is sponsored by the Seminar on Libraries Abroad of the School of Librarianship.

Freshmen hopefuls must file

Freshmen wishing to run for Freshman class president and vice-president must file with the ASUO Secretary in 308 EMU by 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Vacant class office positions will be filled during the general election on Nov. 20 and 21.

Shuttle bus confusion clarified in statement

A recent article in the Emerald described a shuttle bus service operated by the State of Oregon's Department of General Services. A limited schedule of service is available between Eugene, Salem and Portland. Confusion has arisen over who may use the shuttle buses.

The following is an excerpt from a General Services Division memo regarding travel methods. "Travel on buses is limited to official use. Tickets are available at all motor pools in books of ten or twenty. Each ticket is good for a single one-way trip and costs $1. Ticket purchases must be made or approved by authorized agency personnel. All purchases will be billed to using agency on a monthly basis."

Official business is defined as "any program that has been approved by the legislature." Individual students may not use the shuttle buses. ASUO organizations may purchase ticket books for use by individual organization members on state business.
