Singers and chorale to perform

The University Singers and University Chorale Program will present 50 member singers and 90 Chorale members in concert at 8 p.m. tonight at the University Music School Recital Hall.

The University singers are directed by H. Royce Saltzman and the University Chorale is directed by H. Richard Koehler.

Forestry film to be shown

"Clear Cut Views," a movie dealing with mis-management of forestry practices in the Mollala River drainage, produced by OSPIRG will be shown at 7 p.m. tonight in the EMU, room to be posted.

The free showing is open to the public.

Native American article correction

An article in Friday's Emerald concerning the University's Native American Program incorrectly identified the program as being federally funded. The program is state and federally funded.

The Friday report incorrectly listed the amount of federal funding as $20,000. The correct amount of funding is about $3000 federal, and about $16,000 state.

The program, with its new director Ellen Hastay, is located in 104 Fenton and is designed to help Native Americans get an education at the University.

Environmental periodicals to be available

Beginning in January the ASUO Survival Center will have 14 environmental periodicals available for student use. Those available will be: Earthwatch Oregon (monthly news bulletin of the Oregon Environmental Council), Common Cause (periodical of the Common Cause organization), Not Man Apart (Friends of the Earth Magazine), Environmental Action Bulletin, EPA Bulletin (monthly from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency), Pollution Equipment News, Sierra Club National News Report, Audobon Magazine (American Audobon Society), Alternatives (environmentalist magazine from the University of Trent, Ontario, Canada), Catalyst Magazine, Your Environment (London, England), Environment (Scientist's Institute for Public Information), Congressional Record, and Bikeology.

Solid waste is meeting topic

"Solid Waste: Nuisance or Resource" is the topic of a meeting planned by the League of Women Voters of Central Lane County today from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the Eugene Public Library.

Speakers for the morning session will include Bruce Bailey, director of solid waste management for Lane County; Herbert Hunt from Eugene Water and Electric Board; Vern Adkison, director of Lane Regional Air Pollution District; Peter Thurston, director of BRING (Lane's re-cycling agency); Annabell Kitzhaber, tax chairman for the League of Women Voters of Oregon; and Richard Reiter from the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality.

George Wingard, state senator from Eugene, will conclude this session on the possible resources in solid waste. He will speak at the noon hour.

Those attending may bring their lunch. Coffee will be provided.

Seminar slated for tonight

"Women's and Men's Liberation" will be the topic of this week's "People to People!" seminar.

Members of the University Feminists and representatives of the Women's Press will discuss how persons can struggle with sex stereotypes in current-day society, according to William Seavey, of the seminar group.

It will be held at 8 p.m. today at 470 E. 11th Ave.

Identification tools available

The Eugene City Hall is making engraving tools available on a loan basis to citizens of the community as part of "Project Identification."

The "electric pencils" may be used to mark property (TV sets, tools, etc.) with an identifiable number (preferably a driver's license number) as a deterrent to crime.

When the property is marked, a decal is also issued for the front and back doors of the house, indicating that the marking process has been completed.

Those who live in Eugene may call the department and the tools will be delivered by a Community Service Officer. Those living outside Eugene may call for one at the Eugene Police Department, City Hall, 777 Pearl Street.
