Firefly expert speaks today on 'living light'

"Living Light" will be the subject of a free public lecture today at the University by William McElroy, chancellor of the University of California at San Diego and one of the world's leading authorities on bioluminescence.

McElroy will speak at 4:30 p.m. in 123 Science.

Bioluminescence is the emission of light by living things. The best-known example is the firefly, which inhabits every continent but Antarctica.

McElroy was the first to discover the exact chemical formula of one of the two materials which produce light in the firefly.

On Campus

Gerlinger complex open during finals

Gerlinger complex will be open for recreation during finals week. Six areas will be set up for activities including basketball, badminton and volleyball. The building will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Concerts set for tonight, tomorrow

The School of Music will present a Christmas concert at 8 p.m. tonight in the Music School auditorium. Included in the program will be the University Chamber Choir; Randolph Bourne and Greg Teeter, organ; Brass Ensemble; Recorder-Consort; and Chamber Musicians.

Music of the famed Renaissance composer Josquin des Pres will be performed by the University Consort, directed by Harold Owen in the Recital Hall of the School of Music at 8 p.m. Friday.

The Consort will sing and perform on recorders, krumphorns, viola da gamba and a small portative organ. Featured as guest-artist will be John Hamilton, who will perform excerpts from an organ mass by Couperin on the new Ahrend pipe organ.

Native American correction

During the past week, the Emerald has misreported the amount of funding for the University's Native American Program.

Contrary to reports in last Friday's and Wednesday's issues, the NAP receives no federal funds. Federal money in the amount of $3,000 was offered to the program earlier this fall, but the program's staff decided to refuse the money.

The federal money was intended for hiring a tutorial coordinator who would work with the University's federally funded Reading and Study Skills Center. However, "The study skills center was seen by the program as part of the bureaucracy" of filling out evaluations and forms, "so we turned the money down and hired our own tutorial director out of our own ASUO funds," according to Ellen Hastay, NAP director.

ASUO Senate meeting tonight

The confirmation of an ASUO Senate president tops the agenda scheduled for that body's meeting at 7 p.m. tonight in Room 101 EMU.

Other items on the agenda include seating of the new senators elected last month, several committee appointments and a fiscal appropriation for Willamette Student Housing.

Tonight's meeting will be the last for the ASUO Senate until winter term.

OSPIRG film correction

An OSPIRG-sponsored movie dealing with mismanagement of forestry practices in the Mollala River drainage will be shown at 7 p.m. tonight in the EMU.

The Emerald incorrectly reported the night of the film in Wednesday's paper.

"Clear Cut Views," which was produced by OSPIRG, will be shown free and is open to the public.

Women's studies set planning meeting

Women's Studies program planning will hold a meeting at 2 p.m. Dec. 17 at 1893 Villard. For information call 343-7894.

Film history classes rescheduled

"History of Motion Picture," a course formerly scheduled in spring term, has been rescheduled for winter term, according to Horace Robinson of the theatre area of the Speech Department.

Th 255, which drew an unexpectedly large number of students last year, will be held on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. in a larger classroom than before. A second course, "History of Motion Picture in the Sound Era," is scheduled for spring term as a continuation of the winter-term course.

Concert refunds available

Refunds can be obtained starting today for the Mac Davis concert, which was cancelled because of weather conditions. The refunds will be available at the EMU main desk until Dec. 14.
