ROTC
again today

The University faculty is still considering the future of ROTC on campus. For the fourth straight monthly meeting, the general faculty will have questions dealing with the military program on its agenda when it convenes at 3:30 p.m. today in 150 Science.

Today's agenda includes discussion of the Majority Report — the last of three proposals concerning ROTC which were brought before the faculty at the beginning of fall term, 1972.

The Majority Report, a motion in 14 parts prepared by the Standing ROTC Advisory Committee, recommends the addition of three credit non-ROTC courses to the required ROTC curriculum, reimbursement by the military for University ROTC costs, and the creation of a "War and Peace Studies" curriculum.

The two ROTC motions voted down by the faculty at the October and November faculty meetings respectively include a motion to terminate ROTC on campus and the Minority Report which advocated non-credit ROTC courses and a withdrawal of faculty status for ROTC personnel (except the Heads of the Army and Air Force ROTC programs).

Pollution hearing set

The Lane Regional Air Pollution Authority (LRAPA) will hold a public hearing on Lane County air pollution sources beginning at 8 a.m. today in the McNutt Room of the Eugene City Hall.

Vern Adkison, director of LRAPA, said "the hearing is in accord with the Federal Clean Air Act regulations which stipulates that we (LRAPA) survey industry and hold a public hearing on their compliance schedules."

The hearing will consist of the reading of compliance schedules of all agencies in Lane County that are being brought under compliance. "Some of the schedules call for compliance as far away as 1975," he said.

Adkison called the hearing "a major one because there is a new series of ordinances out that must be complied with."

Schedules that are given the go ahead by the LRAPA will be sent on to the state Department of Environmental Quality and from there to the federal Environmental Protection Agency. Any schedules not okayed will be assigned a separate hearing.

A leading authority on the relationships between the art of music and the science of sound, Edward Tatnall Canby, will present a free public lecture-demonstration today at the University.

Canby's appearance is part of the Festival of Arts at the U of O, which has as its theme "Two Visions: Science and Art."

He will speak on the topic "Toward One Culture" at 8 p.m., in the Recital Hall of the School of Music.

Canby is associate editor of Audio magazine, for which he has written record reviews and articles on the relations between "hi fi" and music for more than 25 years.

His radio program in the New York area, "Recordings, E.T.C." has been presented weekly for 25 years. It combines commentary on recorded music with illustrative tape-edited "phonomontages," comparing recordings.

He directs the New York Canby Singers, a group of some 20 singers who perform a cappella music from the Renaissance to the modern period in concerts throughout the New York area and on recordings.

Canby has provided experimental sound tracks for three experimental films.

He is a composer himself and began his career as a music instructor at Princeton.

Irish-American feminist to talk

Rita Moran, an Irish-American feminist who has done extensive research on the conflict in Ireland, will speak at the University today.

Moran is a longtime activist in the women's liberation and antiwar movements. She was a founding member of Female Liberation at Berkeley. In 1970, she went on a fact finding tour of Ireland and more recently conducted interviews visiting leaders of the Irish Republican movement.

The speech will begin at 8 p.m. in the EMU Dad's Room. The public is invited and there is no admission. The speech is sponsored by the ASUO Cultural Forum.

Environmental courses listed

The Environmental Studies Center has prepared a listing of all environmentally related courses offered winter term 1973 through the University and the Division of Continuing Education. A copy can be picked up at the center office, 11 PLC.

Art exhibits shown throughout state

Five exhibitions from the University Museum of Art will be shown in Oregon communities during the next month.

Statewide Services, a division of the Art Museum, sends out these pre-packaged art exhibitions to Oregon communities. The division presently has some 40 different exhibitions available.

In Eugene, an exhibit entitled "University Printmakers," which is a combination of works by University of Oregon students, is on display in the art department gallery through Jan. 15.

In Salem, "Pinhole Photography" by James Shull is showing through Jan. 17 at Willamette University, where "The Figure" by Branson Stevenson will be exhibited Jan. 19 through Feb. 28.

At Linn-Benton Community College in Albany, a combination of woodcut, etching and collograph by Oregon artist Jack McLarty will be on display through Feb. 2.

The show "Nostalgia U.S.A." will be up Jan. 2 through Feb. 5 at the Oregon College of Education College Center in Monmouth. The show is a collection of Works Progress Administration (WPA) works through from the 1930s.

In Baker at the Crossroads Center will be "Collages" by Mark Clarke through Feb. 2.

CommunityPeace groups on American Circus

Local peace groups will discuss their plans to protest the continuation of the Vietnam War tonight on the American Circus heard on radio station KZEL-FM (96.1).

The show, which is hosted by Grattan Kerans and is broadcast live from the Bavarian Restaurant, begins at 7 p.m.

Canadian folksinger to appear

Canadian folksinger Vera Johnson will appear at 7:30 p.m. Thursday night at the Unitarian Church, 40th and Donald Streets.

Johnson, who has been involved in the women's movement for nearly a half a century, is being sponsored by the Family Counseling Services of Lane County.

Donations for the concert are $1.00 a person.

Yoga seminar scheduled

A seminar to introduce students to the age-old practice of yoga will be held at 8 p.m. tonight at 470 East 11th St. The seminar is sponsored by People to People.
