

Group to discuss world future

Friend, are you concerned about the future of the world? Concerned enough to want to do something about it? If so, then maybe the World Future Society is what you've been looking for.

A satellite chapter of the Oregon Trail chapter of the World Future Society will be holding an organizational meeting tonight in the home of LeRoy Owens. Owens, a former state representative, is presently teaching a course in Practical Politics in the School of Community Service and Public Affairs at the University.

"The World Future Society is a world wide group interested in long range planning, alternate futures, and in general what is happening in the world," said Owens. But it doesn't end there. The WFS is concerned with "trying to determine the future rather than having it determined by circumstances beyond our control. We'd like to make a liveable world rather than a world of only existence."

Owens feels that the recently formed Oregon Trail chapter, based in Portland, isn't enough. "We know there is a lot of interest locally and so we feel that there is a need for a satellite chapter. My purpose to start with is to get people together who are interested, to interchange ideas and to hear presentations from people concerning long range planning."

Once acquainted with the problems he hopes that something can be done. "Hopefully we can take action politically or whatever is necessary."

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. tonight. Owens' home is located at 2262 East 15th. Anyone can attend.
