Barron to deliver psychology lecture

Frank Barron, one of America's most distinguished psychologists, will present a free public lecture at the University at 8 p.m. tonight in 177 Lawrence Hall.

Barron, who is on the faculty of the University of California at Santa Cruz, will discuss "The Design of Man and Its Implications for Consciousness".

His research has focused on judgement, perception, and personality characteristics as these pertain to creativity.

Barron's appearance, his second at the University in recent years, is sponsored by the Department of Art Education and co-sponsored by the Departments of Architecture, Psychology, Fine and Applied Arts and the Institute for Community Art Studies at the University and the Oregon Research Institute.

Leather working demonstration today

The public is invited to a free demonstration of design and composite technique in working with leather as a contemporary art form today at 10:30 a.m., in Room 249 Lawrence Hall, at the University.

The demonstration will be presented by Linda Bray, local artist and craftsman, before an "Introduction to Art Education" class taught by Jane Gehring.

Stovall to speak on labor solidarity

Eric Stovall, former shop steward at the American Ship Dismantlers, will speak on labor solidarity at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the EMU. Stovall is currently filing grievances against ASD for settlement of disputes over "dirty work" pay at the plant, and alleged supervisor harassment of employees, particularly purported infringement of his rights while employed as shop steward.

FSO to wrap up constitution proposals

The Foreign Student Organization (FSO) executive board will attempt to finish deliberations on a proposed new constitution this Thursday and adopt a proposed 1973-74 budget.

The board finished deliberations on 13 pages of the 16-page document at its meeting Wednesday night. Board members had hoped to finish deliberations at the meeting, but adjourned the meeting after 2½ hours when Dutch representative Andries Mellema felt the committee was "rushing" too fast.

Only one question developed at the meeting. The draft constitution called for the FSO vice president to "be responsible for all matters pertaining to the elections of officers of the FSO." Indian representative Ranjan Ray felt the elections "would be more authentic" if they were run by a three-man elections committee.

Ray's proposal, which was adopted for recommendation to the FSO, called for the committee to be composed of the FSO vice president, a representative of the ASUO Elections Board and a representative of the Foreign Student Office.

Hassan opposed the proposal because he felt there was "increased feeling" against the Foreign Student Office among foreign students.

The FSO board also set March 1 as a tentative date for a meeting of the FSO to adopt the proposed constitution. According to the present FSO constitution, 194 FSO members will need to be present at the meeting for ratification of a new constitution.
