Dance '73 begins tonight

The University's tenth annual student and faculty dance concert will premier tonight.

Dance '73 will be performed at 8 p.m. on the University Theater Main Stage and will be repeated again Friday and Saturday night. An additional matinee performance will be presented Saturday afternoon.

The dance program includes ballet, modern jazz and folk dance presentations. Musical accompaniment—some of it performed live—will range from Bach and Beethoven to contemporary electronic moog compositions. The music is directed by Bruno Madrid, musical director of the dance department.

The entire program is co-ordinated by Terrie Reeves, instructor of dance, and is a special event of the University Theater's production season.

Dancers in the program—members of the University's Ballet Repertory Company, Modern Repertory Company and Dodre Folk Ensemble—will perform a variety of pieces choreographed by faculty and students of the Dance Department as well as pieces studied from dance script scores.

Tickets for Dance '73 may be purchased at the University Theatre box office or reserved by calling 686-4191. Box office hours are noon to 5 p.m. on weekdays and noon to 9 p.m. on days of performance. Ticket prices are $2.00 for the evening performances and $1.50 for the matinee.

Photos by Lynn Reese