Architecture students win grants

Two University students are among only 20 in the nation to receive Graduate Thesis Fellowship Grants from the National Endowment for the Arts this year.

Dennis Maxwell, a student in landscape architecture, and Scott Wylie, an architecture student, won the 1973 awards.

Maxwell will use his fellowship to study relationships between land use and transportation and Wylie will focus on "Design Processes for the Bob's Superette Neighborhood - A Humanistic Approach" (Bob's Superette is a small grocery store near campus).

The awards are traditionally for $750 or $1,000.

English student named Ernst Fellow

Susan Marie Hubbuch, doctoral student in English at the University, has been awarded the 1973 Rudolf Ernst Graduate Fellowship in English.

The award is given to aid a promising doctoral candidate in financing the completion of the doctoral dissertation. Miss Hubbuch, who lives in Eugene, is now writing her dissertation in the field of Renaissance drama under the direction of Dr. Thelma Greenfield, associate professor of English.

The award is given by Alice Henson Ernst, associate professor emeritus of English, in memory of her late husband, Rudolf Ernst, a member of the University's English Department from 1923 to 1951.

Grad presents Japanese books

A 1916 graduate of the University, Jokichi Tominaga of Tokyo, has given the University two copies of his recently published autobiography, Le Petit Trianon.

The book is in Japanese, but arrangements have been made by Kenneth Ghent, foreign student advisor, to have a Japanese student translate the volume of reminiscences into English. It will become a part of the University's Library collection.

Tominaga received the Bachelor of Science degree in architecture from the University.

Nominations sought for Ersted Award

The University is seeking nominations from students, faculty, and alumni for the 1973 Ersted Award for Distinguished Teaching by a University faculty member.

The Ersted Award, given annually at the University's June Commencement, is in the amount of $1,000.

Nominations for the award should be made in writing and should indicate reasons for the nomination, and carry the signature of the nominator. Nominations should be sent, before April 13, to Marshall Wattles, Academic Vice Provost, 103 Johnson Hall.

Two exhibits now at Honors College

Two exhibits are now on display in the Honors College Lounge in the basement of Friendly Hall. The displays, a small exhibit of six drawings and lithographs by Mary Gregg Byrne titled "Friends" and an exhibit of black and white photographs by David Cockcroft, are open to the public.

OSEA committee elections set

The election for the OSEA unit selection committee will be held in the next several months. According to OSEA by-laws any full-time employee whose dues are paid and who is a member of the bargaining unit being represented is eligible to run. Further information on the exact dates and positions will be posted on bulletin boards.

WICHE offers summer projects

At least 35 paid summer research opportunities available to Oregon students and students to be have been developed by the WICHE (Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education) Resources Development Internship Program. The internships, which involved students in work as researchers and project leaders in Oregon governmental and private agencies and result in the publication of students' findings by WICHE, are available in several such fields.

The WICHE program will accept applications from upper class and graduate students until April 15, and the tax free educational stipend for 12 weeks' work ranges from $900 to $1,140, depending on marital status and year in school. A complete list of available projects and sponsors is available from the Portland State University Urban Studies Center, P.O. Box 751, Portland, 97207, phone 229-4015.
