

Exchange program threatened

By TODD MERRIMAN
Of the Emerald

Scholarships for University students participating in an exchange program with the German universities at Stuttgart and Tuebingen may soon become unavailable if the University continues to be unable to provide reciprocal funds for visiting German students.

The prediction accompanied Monday's announcement by Gordon Gilkey, chairer of the executive board of the Oregon Study Center in Germany, that the board has recommended two University students be awarded scholarships by the University of Stuttgart for the 1973-74 school year.

Rene Olivieri, freshman, was named as the board's primary candidate and Kathleen Eymann, sophomore, was named as alternate.

Twelve University students are currently studying in Germany, tuition free, as part of the exchange program between the Oregon State System of Higher Education and the German state of Baden-Wuerttemberg. Three of the University exchange students receive monthly cash stipends, ranging from $134 to $167, from the German government.

Only one German exchange student is presently enrolled at the University under the program.

The one-sided nature of the exchange program disturbs

Helmut Plant, associate professor of German and former resident director of the Oregon Study Center in Stuttgart.

This is the first year in the five-year existence of the program that a German student has received scholarship money to attend the University, Plant says. The student, Rudolf Hendel, was awarded $1,035 in fee remission and $502 from the Oregon Development Fund. Hendel's room and board were provided by the Theta Chi fraternity.

Plant compares the aid given Hendel with $17,000 in cash stipends awarded University students in Germany over the past five years and says the University has a "moral obligation" to support German students in an equal amount.

The University, however, has been unable even to find funds to continue the scholarship granted Hendel this year. Gerald Bogen, vice-president for student services and chairer of the ad hoc committee searching for funds for the program, said it appears likely the University's participation in the program next year will likely be limited to paying the tuition for one German student.

Bogen said he had investigated the possibility of obtaining funds from private and civic groups, but had found the "doors shut."
