An OSSHE Program

Week planned for 'White Water Kicks'

Has white water on the McKenzie ever tempted you? If so the Outdoor Program's "White Water Week" this week may help you heed the call.

"White Water Week" kicks off tonight at 7:30 p.m. in 150 Science with an introductory multi-media slide show on the Colorado and Bruneau Rivers, which the Outdoor Program has sponsored trips on. Kayaking, canoeing and rubber rafting equipment will be on display.

Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Dad's Room Paul Happel, from the Outdoor Resource Center, will give a slide show presentation on the Owyhee River.

The Walt Disney film "Ten Who Dared," the story of the 1869 expedition headed by John Powell in the first conquest of the Colorado River, will be shown Thursday night.

While the films are being offered to provide information and to stimulate interest most of the instruction will take place in the water itself, according to Bruce Mason, Outdoor Program Assistant director.

Wednesday night an indoor kayaking session will be offered at 9 p.m. in Leighton pool. "The pool offers a safe, easy surface for worried beginners", said Kayaker Art Pope.

On Tuesday and Thursday afternoon there will be beginning kayaking and rubber rafting instruction on the lower McKenzie River. Saturday there will be an all day kayaking and rubber rafting instructional session on the McKenzie. Sunday there will be an instructional canoeing and kayaking trip on the Willamette River.

Two dance discussions set

Allegra Fuller-Snyder, a dance ethnologist from the University of California at Los Angeles, will present two free public sessions at the University tonight.

At 3:30 p.m., in the Gerlinger Hall gymnasium she will conduct an informal discussion of dance ethnology in general, and the program in dance ethnology at UCLA. Dance ethnology is a field of anthropology which focuses on a comparative study of dance among cultures.

"Dance in Non-Western Cultures" will be the subject of a panel discussion at 7:30 p.m., Monday, in the Gerlinger Alumni Lounge.

Allegra Fuller-Snyder will be on the panel, along with UO faculty members Barre Toeiken, English; Janet Descutner, Dance; and Robert Trotter, Music.
