

Seventeen music scholarships awarded

Seventeen students will pursue their education in music during 1973-74 under scholarship awards from the University School of Music, announces Music School Dean Robert Trotter.

The $2,000 awards are from the Ruth Lorraine Close Musical Scholarship fund, established in 1972 through a bequest from the late Ruth Gracely of Palm Springs, Calif. Gracely, formerly from Portland, taught harp in Portland for many years.

The first award from the fund was made in 1972 to Katherine Kienzle of Eugene. Kienzle studied at Juilliard School of Music. Her award has been renewed and during 1973-74 she will be studying toward a masters degree at the University of Arizona.

Several other Eugene students are among this year's recipients of scholarships. Janet Jackson and Susan Rockey, both graduates of South Eugene High School, will study at the University Music School. Jackson is taking work in harp and voice and Rockey will work toward a career as a professional cellist.

Kristen Wiper of Eugene, graduate of Churchill High School, will study harp at the University.

Carolyn Neff, now a Eugene resident and graduate student, will use the award to study trumpet in Scandinavia and to continue studies at the University.

Philip Bayles, graduate student, will work toward a Doctor of Musical Arts degree in composition here. He also makes his home in Eugene.

A teacher of music education at Creslane Elementary School in Creswell, Mary Yost has received one of the awards to continue studies towards a masters degree at Oregon.

Nancy Dunn of Springfield will study toward her doctorate at the University Music School.

Eric Funk, Beaverton, is a graduate student here working toward a masters degree in composition. He will continue study on this campus.

Pamela Cooper of Forest Grove, junior in the University

School of Music, will continue studies in music education.

A sophomore studying voice and organ, Sharon Gross of McMinnville will also continue studies at the University.

Continuation of music study in bassoon at the University is the plan of Bryce Troy of Roseburg.

Michael Yantis of Stayton, a graduate student in composition, will also continue work at the University.

Two California students who received the awards plan to study here. They are Daniel Coon of Palmdale, a sophomore in the Music School, and Raymond Barker of Vallejo, graduate student working toward a doctorate in composition.

Mark Howard Steidel of Berkeley, Calif., is a 1973 graduate of the University. He plans to use the scholarship for graduate work at Mills College, Oakland, California.

A foreign recipient of the scholarship is Maethjun Park of Seoul, Korea. He has received the Master of Music degree from the University and plans to continue work here towards a doctorate in composition.

Ed-rec in beautiful Ashland area. See Shakespeare on North America's first Elizabethan stage.

Old stuff, modern come-on.

"All hell shall stir for this" - "Henry the Fifth."

If you think Watergate was just a deplorable incident, don't bother.

Mind-expanding, soul-enhancing, body-bracing.

Let your hang-ups all hang out.

"Your hearts are mighty, your skins are whole" - "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Did you know Shakespeare was a Taurus? No bull.

"Put money in thy purse, excellent wretch. Potations bottle-deep is rich and rich enough. They laugh that win" - "Othello."

The mysterious remains the pervasive element in our lives.

"Men have died from time to time, and worms have eaten them—but not for love" - "As You Like It."

Shakespeare was gay, but not GPA.

If you've had it before, you can get it again. Eng. 436 G. No take-off.
