that it was possible the Nixon Administration was handling the economy in such a way that the money could be raised. Relaxed and anecdotal throughout his speech, Heller reluctantly lauded Nixon's fiscal measures. He said that Nixon has made "blunders" in the past but this is first time since World War II that America has been in a position to break the "boom-bust cycle."

scholarship available for a top student in its circulation area. Leslee Beyer of Springfield has been named to receive it.

The family and friends of Earle Richardson, late publisher of the Polk County Itemizer-Observer, Dallas, are awarding a scholarship in his memory. Penny Nelson of Sweet Home has been named the recipient.

The Oregon Scholastic Press, the organization of Oregon high school journalism teachers and advisers, makes three $200 scholarships available to entering freshmen who plan to major in journalism. Selected for these scholarships are Pamela Berry and Thomas Fluharty, both of Portland, and Lora Cuykendall of West Albany.

The best terminal project by a graduate student wins the T. Neal Taylor Award. The 1973 winner is Sheryl Hom of Beaverton, whose project was a complete advertising presentation for Meier & Frank's junior miss market.

The best paper by a foreign student wins for its author the Harpham Award. This year's winner is Arne Kvalheim of Oslo, Norway, who wrote a master's thesis on governmental influences on the press in Norway.

The late Warren C. Price, long-time faculty member of the Journalism School, is honored each year with the presentation of the Warren C. Price History Award. Embert Fossum, Eugene, won the prize this year with his study of reporters and reporting in the Indian wars in Oregon.

Three journalism students were honored for their outstanding scholarship. Cheryl Beshears of Eugene and Roxann Miller of Missoula, Montana were named recipients of the Hillsboro Argus Emma McKinney Award and Richard Sept of Eugene won the William G. Gurney Memorial Award.

ANDREA'S 1036 WILLAMETTE 6-28-73 Yesterday was hot and muggy in our little six-foot store. Our fans were making a lot of noise. There were about ten people in the shop when we received a 1,000 lb. shipment of mostly dyeable fabrics for your batiks and tie-dyes. The delivery man piled it all up in the dressing rooms and what wouldn't fit there was left on the sidewalk out front. It took John most of the day to unpack the crates, also containing some hand-woven striped Indian fabrics ($2.50 a yard), Dutch wax African prints ($3.50 a yard) and some inexpensive flannel for your fall sewing. You beautiful people tried on your batiks etc. in between the tall crates in the dressing rooms and were patient with the mess. On the way home, John and I wondered out loud why you put up with us. For some reason you do, and so we would like to say "Thank you, thank you very much." —Andrea
