

BOG money available

"As soon as the dust raised by registration settles," every freshman with a parental income of $15,000 a year or less will be encouraged to apply for a Basic Educational Opportunity Grant, said Walter Freau, director of financial aid.

The new program, more popularly known as the BOG Program, is sponsored by the Office of Education and is designed to assist eligible students planning to enter colleges, universities, community colleges, approved vocational and technical schools, and hospital schools of nursing.

"Until the program is fully funded, only first-time, full-time students for the 1973-74 school year are eligible to apply," Freau said. "When the program receives full federal funding, all undergraduates will be eligible."

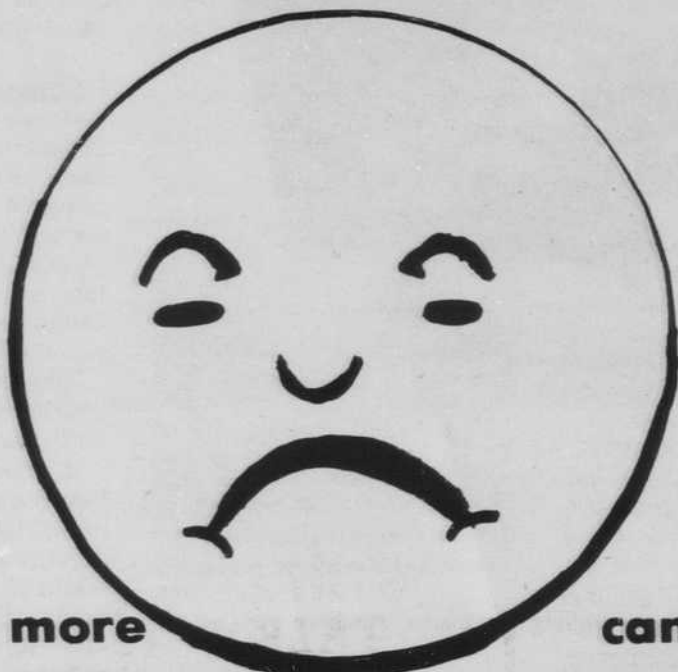

"Under the BOG system, eligibility is difficult to determine," he continued. "Every freshman, resident and non-resident, currently on financial aid or whose parents' incomes do not exceed $15,000 will be urged to apply. It doesn't cost anything to do so, and the student owes it to himself, even if the grant is small."

"Freshmen have until Feb. 1, 1974 to apply for a BOG grant for this year," Freau said, "but because the University is on the quarter system, applications must be in before the end of fall term for full financial benefits."

For the academic year 1973-74, $122 million is available to assist an estimated 425,000 students. The maximum award is $452 and the average award is $200.

Share-a-ride program initiated

Are you tired of struggling to find a place to park your car? Are your legs giving out from bicycling to campus? Is your horse refusing to carry you another inch? Well, the University Survival Center has the answer, a free service called Share-A-Ride.

If you have a car and are willing to give rides to others, or if you don't have a car and need a ride to campus, then call the Survival Center at 686-4356 and they will try to match you with someone else in your locality with a similar schedule so car pools can be formed.

Calligrapher to talk at Forum

Northwest Forum is a new Cultural Forum program series designed to focus attention upon the people and events that are shaping the politics, arts, and public opinion of our region. Tuesday, October 2, Lloyd Reynolds, Professor Emeritus of Art History, Reed College, will join students, faculty and staff in the Erb Memorial Union for an informal discussion and exchange of ideas. Reynolds, considered one of the greatest calligraphers in the world, has written many books on the subject and presented several educational television series. Last year he was proclaimed by Governor McCall as Oregon's first Calligrapher Laureate.

The Forum will begin at 12:30 and everyone is invited to bring their lunch. The room will be posted.

Follies to feature Diane Adams

Diane Adams, a folk balladeer, will be the featured artist for Fishbowl Follies this week. Performing with Adams will be Rob Thomas. They will perform at 8:30 Tuesday and Thursday evenings in the EMU Fishbowl. No admission is charged and the events are open to the campus community.

Class on ancients needs students

A class on the ancient Americans who once inhabited western North America needs more students. The DCE class, Prehistoric Occupants of the West, is taught from 7-10 p.m. Thursdays in 242 Commonwealth. For information, call Rick Pettigrew, ext. 5100.

Tryouts to be held for 'Tea and Sympathy'

Following the Broadway trend toward "American Classics," the University Theater Executive Board has chosen Robert Anderson's Tea and Sympathy as its first main stage production for the 1973-74 season. Although prominent in American theater and motion picture history, Tea and Sympathy has not been previously produced in Eugene.

Tryouts for this mid-century American drama will be held at 7:30 p.m., Monday, October 1 in room 201 Villard Hall. Tea and Sympathy which will be produced on November 9, 10, 14, 15, 16, and 17, contains roles for eleven men and two women.

Persons interested but unable to attend the public auditions are invited to contact Horace Robinson, director of the production, for private readings.

Balloonists to race in Northwest skies

Many of the nation's top hot air balloonists will descend on the Willamette Valley the weekend of Oct. 13-14 and ascend in competitive performance in the first annual Great Oregon Hot Air Balloon Races.

Allen Stephens of Forest Grove, race chairman for the sponsoring organization, Hot Air, Inc., said at least 25 balloons from all areas of the United States have already entered the competition. Thirty or more are expected by race time. The races will be held at Brooks, five miles north of Salem.

"The event marks the first time anything like this has been held in the Pacific Northwest," Stephens added.

The races are sanctioned by the Balloon Federation of America, a division of the National Aeronautic Association of Washington, D.C.

Balloon events include hare and hounds, spot target bombing and a colorful mass ascension of all participating balloons to close the competition each day.

Gates open at 10 a.m. and races start immediately.

Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1 for youngsters 12 and under.

Prize money for the event amounts to more than $2,000 with an additional $2,000 donated to the Columbia-Willamette Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.
