Beck named to NSF post

Jacob Beck, University professor of psychology, has accepted an administrative position for most of the current year with the National Science Foundation.

Beck, who has been given leave from the University, will be Program Director of the Psychobiology Program in the Division of Biological and Medical Sciences in the Directorate for Research.

While NSF normally appoints selected specialists for such positions for approximately a year, special arrangements have been made to permit Professor Beck to return to the University to teach Winter Term, 1974, classes.

A member of the University faculty since 1966, Professor Beck is a graduate of Yeshiva University, New York, N.Y. and received his advanced degrees from Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. His areas of specialization are perception, psychophysics, and vision.

All those interested in aging and the elderly are invited to attend the first meeting of the Gerontology Club, tonight at 7:30 in the EMU. The room will be posted. The status of the club and activities for fall term will be discussed.

Proficiency exams offered

Students wishing to take the proficiency examinations for specific skill areas may sign up at the Physical Education Office in Gerlinger Annex. Written tests will be administered on either Tuesday or Wednesday evenings of October 16th and 17th. Testing time will be from 7:00-9:00 p.m. in Room 10 of Gerlinger. Students passing the written phase of the proficiency exam will be referred to activity coordinators for completion of the skill phase.

The purpose of proficiency tests in the Physical Education Service Program is to allow students to demonstrate their ability in certain physical activities in order to delete part or all of their University requirements in physical education. Proficiency tests do not award credit toward a degree.

Proficiency tests will be given in those beginning courses that lend themselves to practical examinations. Sheets listing these courses are posted throughout the Physical Education Complexes.

The deadline for signing up for proficiency examinations for Fall Term is Friday, October 12th.
