Leo endorses Myers in Rubicon speech

By PAUL HAAS
Of the Emerald

ASUO President Greg Leo endorses Secretary of State Clay Myers as Oregon's next governor Friday at a meeting of the Eugene Rubicon Society.

Before a group of 30, Leo talked of the positive efforts made by students in Oregon legislation throughout the past year. Lowering the age of majority was just one of the successes student lobbyists used their influence to attain, said Leo. Liberalization of marijuana laws and making birth control more accessible to Oregonians were other reforms students had a part in, he added.

Leo believes the biggest success for the lobbyists was the addition of two students to the State Board of Higher Education. "Students are consumers of education, and deserve a role in making decisions. Republicans were extremely cooperative and understanding in the lobbyists' plight," he said, adding that he is going with the Republican Party. To see the positive actions taking place among Republicans, one should look to politics in Oregon, he said. With men like McCall, Hatfield, and Packwood as examples, Leo gave his approval of the "step by step method of reforms" Republicans utilize.

Giving his forecast of students at the University this year, Leo said although one doesn't see as much of the long hair the student three years ago had, the empathy of the past is still very much alive. "It's the methods that students are using for change that is different." Programs like SEARCH and ESCAPE are proof that students are more interested in individual change rather than that of mass demonstrations, said Leo. "More students are thinking of the future," he added. The renewed interest among students towards the Business School and Law School are other factors pointing at the change of attitude for the students' future, said Leo. He added that the "war attitude" no longer is present at the University as it was three years ago.

Although there are problems with no easy answers foreseen in the upcoming school year, such as the number of students deciding how incidental fees are spent, Leo said he sees a year of student involvement with the community, ahead.
