We Can Help You.

As you may suspect, selecting a stereo system is more than just a matter of taste. It is first and foremost the process of discovering just how much performance you can get for your dollar. How much sound will a system produce? How much of the full musical range does it cover? How clean and detailed is the overall sound?

We at Mac's are uniquely able to demonstrate sound in our stores and show the easily audible differences that may be important to you. But we can be of help even before you come in. Because we spend a good deal of our time evaluating all kinds of stereo equipment for ourselves, we can supply a good preliminary summary of what performance characteristics can be had at what price, what you will gain if you spend more, what characteristics you might want to see emphasized at a given price level.

What Your Dollar Buys:

With a limited budget ($200-$300) you can get a system of reasonable accuracy, but some sacrifices are necessary at the extremes of the musical range to get satisfactory acoustic output (loudness). A system in this price range is most appropriate to small listening areas.

With a moderate budget ($400-$500), you have two choices. On one hand, you can get a system which provides accurate musical reproduction in every respect, with sufficient sound output for medium size rooms (2,000 cubic feet or less). Alternatively, if you like to play music very loud in a large room, you can select a different kind of system in this price range that sacrifices some musical accuracy (bass response in particular) to get extra sound output.

With somewhat more to spend ($550-$700), you will be able to get a system that combines completely satisfying accuracy with ample output for even very large listening areas and very loud musical levels. In addition, it will include features which add to ease and flexibility of operation, and which help to preserve your records. For most people, the point of diminishing returns is in this price range.

An unlimited budget ($1,000 and up) will afford you the very best equipment available. Such a system can provide a number of sonic refinements for the ultra-critical listener; truly thunderous sound output on demand; and a myriad of luxurious and helpful control features.
