'Talk to trees' workshop today

The Willamette National Forest is now in the early stages of a long-term comprehensive land-use planning program. Public involvement in the early stages of the planning process, which will establish Forest Service management policies and objectives for the Willamette, is scheduled between now and December 3rd.

In an effort to obtain public participation in the planning process, University students Fred Swanson and Gayle Landt have organized a public work session to be held today. The session will run from 7 to 10 p.m. at Harris Hall, 8th and Oak streets in Eugene.

"Issues and concerns" response forms prepared by the students will be available to facilitate public participation. Landt said that thirty minutes to an hour of an individual's time would be enough to make a valid contribution. Persons seeking additional information about the program should contact Gayle Landt, at 362 East 12th Ave.

The Oregon Daily Emerald is published Monday through Friday during the school year, except during exam week and vacation periods fall, winter and spring terms. During summer session the Emerald is published four times weekly during the 8-week term and once a week during the remainder of the 11-week term. The Emerald is published by the Oregon Daily Emerald Board of Directors, incorporated, at the University of Oregon.
