Baking bill fails to cook in Legislature

The fate of a bill responding largely to the needs of people selling baked goods at the Saturday Market, which defines domestic bakeries and excludes them from federal regulation, is uncertain as the special session of the Oregon state legislature draws to a close.

The bill, co-sponsored by Mary Burrows, Republican representative of District 41, defines a domestic bakery as the kitchen area of a home in which the preparation of baked goods for sale are incidental in the weekly use of the kitchen. These bakeries would be exempt from licensing and inspection by the Department of Agriculture. This includes licensing of workers in the kitchen and vehicles used to transport goods to market.

The bill is one of many not yet placed on the calendar by the Rules Committee. An emergency clause is attached to the bill which would render it effective as soon as the governor signs it.

UFW supporters protest Gallo hold on workers

Eugene Friends of the Farmworkers, a local volunteer support group for the United Farmworkers Union, AFL-CIO, announced Wednesday the start of a "Boycott Gallo Wines" campaign.

The group is asking store managers to cancel future orders of Gallo wines and is distributing leaflets urging store customers not to buy Gallo. Customers will also be asked to request the managers to remove the wine from shelves during the boycott.

Several store managers have expressed support of the boycott.

The Gallo Boycott has been gathering force across the country in the past month, the group said. Hundreds of supermarket chains, grocery stores and liquor stores have stopped selling Gallo products.

The boycott was organized to protest the Gallo winery's efforts to deprive their employees of a voice in union representation according to Friends of the Farmworkers members.

The boycott will continue until Gallo permits free representation elections to determine the wishes of the workers, the group said.

For more information contact Jere Rosemeyer, 343-6372.

ON CAMPUS

Speaker to cover Britain's labor movement

Professor A. F. Thompson of Oxford University, England, will speak at the University today at 3:30 p.m. in the EMU. He will talk on "The Labour Movement in Britain: Problems, Past, Present and Future."

Thompson, co-author of "A History of British Trade Unions since 1889," is the Kratter Visiting Professor of Modern European History at Stanford University during this academic year.

Error in architecture story corrected

Wednesday's story on the architecture department contained an error of fact. The fourth paragraph of the printed story read: "Two thirds of next year's entering architecture students will be selected by a faculty and student committee." In fact, the original story explained that two-thirds of next year's class will be admitted on a first-come basis, with the remaining one-third selected by the committee.

A typesetting error shortened the original sentence and left out the correct explanation of the admission policy.

Dorms begin workshop on recycling

Recycling has begun in the dorms. The class on campus recycling is calling upon all dorm residents to recycle their newspaper and notebook paper. Signs have been posted in the dorms and the trash rooms are ready for storage.

Future of recycling subject of talk

Ben Massingil from the Lane County Solid Waste Department will speak to Recycling Workshop, C.S.P.A. 199, on the future of recycling and solid waste management in Lane County. The extent and implications of the current solid waste problems and the search for a new land fill site will also be discussed. The class will meet at 7 p.m., Thursday, February 21, in 336 Commonwealth.

COMMUNITY

County-wide library subject of seminar

Lane County's Library Advisory Committee is sponsoring a seminar to discuss components of a county-wide library this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Harris Hall, adjacent to the courthouse.

Several speakers will discuss various library functions in their counties and answer questions. A slide show, prepared by North Eugene High School students Kim Babb and Kathy Schoen will also be presented.

Energy expert to speak at LCC

M. King Hubbert, a research geophysicist who has been predicting the energy crisis for many years, will speak on "The World's Energy Economy" Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in the Forum Building during the 32nd annual meeting of the Oregon Academy of Science at LCC.

Other areas to be covered during the session include discussions on anthropology, biology, chemistry, geography, geology, mathematics and physics.

The Oregon Daily Emerald is published Monday through Friday during the school year, except during exam and vacation periods, and four times weekly during summer session by the Emerald Board of Directors at the University of Oregon.
