

Pigger's Guide may have a new name

The 1974-75 Pigger's Guide should be available Nov. 1, according to Tim Chapman, Emerald advertising salesman.

Pigger's Guide is the traditional title of the University campus directory. The name may be dropped this year because some have complained it is not descriptive or fitting. Others feel that the tradition should be perpetuated. Those who feel strongly either way should send their opinions to Chapman, 301 Allen Hall.

If the title is changed, a $25 reward will go to the contributor of the best new name and Duck Dope coupon books will be given to the 10 runners up.

By any name, the new directory should be a vintage edition. The Emerald, which took over publication when the old publishers went belly up, is adding sections on bicycles, local restaurants, and indoor plant care among others. Sure to be the most popular innovation is a new low price of zero dollars to students, faculty, and staff. People not affiliated with the University will be able to buy it for the same dollar it costs to print a copy.

To insure correct listing, early registration participants and those who have changed their address or phone number should be sure to give the registrar's office the new information.

Students needed for Thiram study

A multi-disciplinary research project is being organized by University biology students to study the health effects of Thiram, a chemical deer repellent, on Northwest tree planters and nursery workers.

Sponsors of the project are now looking for students majoring in areas other than biology to participate. Students in sociology, psychology (social and physiological), public health and business or economics are particularly needed. Academic credit for the project may also be arranged.

Students interested in the project are urged to attend an important meeting tonight at 7:30 in the third floor conference room of Science III.

For further information call Paul Policastro at 342-4539 or John Olson at 484-1178.

Dellenback to speak tomorrow

Rep. John Dellenback will speak on the EMU terrace Tuesday morning. Dellenback, the Republican incumbent seeking reelection to Congress, will discuss his reelection.

JSU sponsors candidate forum

The Journalism Student Union is hosting a candidates' forum today at 12:30 p.m. Candidates running for Position Two on the Student University Affairs Board will be present. Position Two includes majors in journalism and speech. The meeting will be held in the Newspaper Reading Room, second floor of Allen Hall.

Positions open on soph class council

There are seven positions on the sophomore class council that need to be filled. Members will work with the class officers on class and ASUO projects such as a marathon for muscular dystrophy, a dance for the Heart Association, and a food drive for the poor. All those who are interested are encouraged to apply at the sophomore class meeting Wednesday Oct. 23 at 7 p.m. The room will be posted at the main desk in the EMU. Those wanting further information can contact Tom Orr at 686-2011, Jeff Goldenberg at 687-9041, or Mike Mitchell at 485-9610.

Danforth fellowships available

Applications are now being accepted from college seniors interested in the Danforth Foundation College Teaching Fellowships.

Deadline for the applications is Oct. 22. The 100 fellowships are available to all seniors who will complete their baccalaureate program in June 1975. All qualified persons of any race, creed or citizenship, single or married, with a serious interest in college teaching and/or administration and planning to study for a Ph.D. are eligible.

Applications may be sent to C.W. Fisk, Assistant Dean of the Graduate School, Chapman Hall.

Seniors schedule council gathering

There will be an urgent meeting of the Senior Class Council at 4:30, today in the EMU (room to be posted). Future plans will be discussed. All students interested in becoming members of the Council should attend. For further information call Jim Davis, senior class president, 484-0103.

Committee to present boycott film

There will be a general meeting of the EMU Boycott Committee tonight at 7:30 in the EMU (room to be announced). Anyone interested in working on the boycott is welcome. "Why We Boycott," a film about the United Farm Workers' work, will be shown. Operation of the alternative food service and future activities will be the primary concerns at tonight's meeting.
