

Women courses still open

New courses at the University include "The Woman Writer: A Workshop" and "Autobiographies by Women."

"The Woman Writer," listed as English 407, will meet from 7:30-9:50 p.m. Mondays in Allen Hall, Room 216. "Autobiographies by Women" meets 7-9:50 p.m. Wednesdays in Allen 216. Both classes are being taught by Ingrid Wendt and earn three hours credit each.

Editor's Note: These courses were approved after the official time schedule was published, and the courses are still open.

Geology guide provides facts, entertainment for rock hounds

A geology field trip over sidewalks is outlined in a unique guide to "building geology" on the University campus.

The Geology Department has prepared the guide, which describes a 15-stop do-it-yourself tour of rocks and other geological features displayed in building stone and in exhibits.

"Geology students as well as amateurs will find some things of interest here," explains William Holser, professor of geology, who coordinated work on the guidebook.

The guide assumes no prior knowledge of "things geological," according to Holser.

Such obvious items as the displays in the Volcanology Center and Museum of Natural History are noted.

Free copies of the guide and and tour times are available from the Geology Department office in the Science building, 13th and University Streets.

Law students provide free class to public

The Eugene Peoples' Law School has started classes for this fall. Peoples' Law School (PLS) is a weekly series of informational sessions presented by University law students. Each week a different area of the legal system of interest to Eugene - Springfield residents is covered, with no charge to the public.

The purpose of these classes is to help members of the community become more aware of what rights they have under various laws and how their rights under these laws work.

Kathy Foldes of PLS said, "If people are informed, we'll have a healthier community." This fall's schedule is as follows:

October 8	Small Claims
October 9	Legal Research
October 15	Zoning
October 22	Welfare and Food Stamps
October 29	Search and Seizure
November 5	Consumer Protection
November 12	Landlord-Tenant Relations
November 19	Buying Land
December 3	Workers' Rights

All classes will be held at Central Presbyterian Church, 15th Avenue and Ferry Street, in the main floor conference room. Classes will begin at 7 p.m. and last approximately two hours. For more information, call 345-3202.

Eid celebration ends 'Ramadan'

This Sunday ends the month of fasting called Ramadan for over 700 million Muslims throughout the world. Ramadan is the month in which the Holy Koran was revealed to the prophet Mohammed.

Local Muslims will celebrate the end of Ramadan with an Eid celebration. Eid prayers will begin at 9:30 a.m. at 1953 Garden Ave. A potluck and program will be at 6:30 p.m. at the Amazon Village Community Center, located at 2700 Hilyard Street.

For further information call Fatimah Jamal 342-6748.

Choral gives amateurs spotlight

The School of Music is offering a new choral course for community members as well as regular University students.

The class is called the Choral Union (Music 197) and meets 7-8:30 p.m. Wednesday evenings. It will enroll a choral group of 80 to 90 people. No audition is required.

The union will provide the opportunity for individuals with minimal singing experience to participate in a large choral group, which will present several concerts this year on the campus.

Geography; climate focal points on KWAX's 'Land of Plenty'

"The Land of Plenty," is the second program in the National Public Radio series, the American Issues Radio Forum to be aired Saturday, Oct. 4.

In the Eugene-Springfield area the program will be broadcast over the University radio station KWAX-FM, 91.1, beginning at 8 a.m.

In three one-hour segments, the program will explore the effects of geography and climate on American life and environment. Listeners will be able to call in on a special toll free WATS number to talk with the panel participants.

The American Issues Radio Forum is made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.
