

...et al Faculty welcomes new members

Are you a new faculty member and a real "joiner?" If you haven't found a suitable clique yet, a reception at the Faculty Club Thursday may be the answer. The club is holding a reception for new faculty from 4 to 6 p.m. in that dignified-looking bastion of academia on the southwest corner of 13th Avenue and University Street. All Faculty Club members are also invited and dues will be accepted at that time.

University holds smoking clinic

Anyone who wants to stop smoking is invited to participate in the University's Smoking Control Project this fall.

Treatment procedures are based on principles of learning and habit formation that are tailored to the specific smoking patterns of participants.

Treatment will begin the first week in November and continue for four weeks. A fee of $5 is charged for the entire program. A refundable $15 deposit also is required.

Anyone who wants to participate or wants more information may contact the Psychology Clinic, 686-4964.

Bibliography lists local authors

The Oregon Authors Committee of the Oregon Library Association is compiling the 1975 edition of "Oregon Authors," an annual bibliography of published works by persons residing in Oregon. Any Oregon resident who has published or will publish any kind of book in 1975 and wishes to be included in the bibliography may notify Edwin Budge,

Chairman, Oregon Authors Committee, 506 N.W. 5th St., Grants Pass, OR 97526.

Last year the Oregon Library Association made available 400 copies of the 1974 "Oregon Authors" list to school, public, and university librarians. Many of these librarians use the list to order books or pamphlets for their libraries.

Authors who published books in 1974, may also contact Budge so that last year's bibliography may be updated.

The information sent should include: author, city or town of author's residence, title of the book, publisher or printer, date of publication and price. The bibliography will be distributed free to Oregon librarians in the spring. Several copies of last year's "Oregon Authors" are still available and may be obtained by writing to the above address.

Security files serial numbers

Monday's story on Operation Stop-Theft contained an error. Serial numbers recorded under the program are kept on file at Campus Security and are forwarded to the police only when the item is reported stolen.

The Emerald regrets the error.

Rape exams difficult to get, says survey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of the nation's hospitals make it difficult, expensive and embarrassing for a rape victim to obtain an examination and treatment, according to a new government-funded survey.

The report prepared for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration said many private hospitals refuse to examine and treat rape victims.

The private hospitals which provide such services may charge as much as $75, the report said.

The 15-month survey was conducted by the Center for Women Policy Studies in Washington with a $238,437 LEAA grant.
