

Teach-in set today

Palestine Awareness Week continues with a teach-in planned today for 12:30 p.m. in 167 EMU. The week's events are a collective effort of many organizations: The Ethiopian Student Union, Eugene Coalition, Free Palestine Committee, Gulf Solidarity Committee, Iranian Student Association, Movimiento Estudiantil Popular, Muslim Student Association, Organization of Arab Students, and Third World Student Coalition.

The focus of "Palestine Awareness Week" is to present what some view as the Palestinian struggle for self-determination and the regaining of their homeland.

HRC plans two awards

The Eugene Human Rights Commission wants to know about people and organizations in Eugene that have made outstanding contributions in the field of human rights. The commission plans to recognize one such individual and organization with its annual human rights award, according to Betsy Merck, city human rights specialist. The two awards will be presented at a human rights commission meeting on Tuesday, February 24.

Merck said that criteria for eligible award candidates are that the individual or organization be involved in human rights activities in the community, be committed personally or organizationally to the advancement of human rights, and (if an organization) be an equal opportunity group with a history of human rights involvement.

The award presentation will come at the last official meeting for the present Eugene Human Rights Commission. A new human rights ordinance abolishes the existing commission as of March 1 and replaces it with four separate commissions on the rights of women, minorities, the handicapped, and the aging.

Young, old to share house

All young people and senior citizens interested in working with the Gray Panther Inter-Generational housing program are invited to attend a special meeting of the Gray Panthers Friday at 3 p.m. at the Kaufman Senior Center, 996 Jefferson St., Eugene.

Under this program young people and seniors would live together in a large housing facility near the University of Oregon. The purpose of the program is to improve communications between the generations, and is patterned after a program now offered by Syracuse University in New York.

Under the program, seniors and young people would rent rooms under the facility leased to the Gray Panthers. Expected monthly rent will be in the range of $80 to $100. It is expected that the facility will be open to seniors and students shortly after the current academic year is over: June 1976.

For further questions contact Ron Wyden at 490 E. 18th St., or come to regular Gray Panther meetings at 490 E. 18th St., Friday evenings at 7.

Symposium set Saturday

The University Russian and East European Studies Center is sponsoring a symposium on scientist Andrei Sakharov this Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The symposium will be held at the Wayne Morse House at 595 Crest Drive in Eugene. Sakharov is a 1975 Nobel Peace Laureate, has served on the Moscow Human Rights Committee, and is the author of several books.

A no-host Russian luncheon will be held at the beginning of the symposium, at a cost of $3 for students and $4 for all other interested people. Luncheon reservations are limited to 60 and today is the deadline for registration. Interested persons should contact Albert Leong at 686-4065 or 686-4051.

Business exec to teach honors college class

An Iowa insurance executive will spend the month of February teaching a class at the University's Robert D. Clark Honors College under a special program co-sponsored by the Institute of Life Insurance and the University.

The executive is Ray E. Cassell, senior vice-president and secretary of the Bankers Life Company, Des Moines, Iowa. He is a former fellow of the Life Management Institute and has been associated with Bankers Life since 1936.

Selected last fall as the Institute's Business Executive in Residence for the University, Cassell will spend four-weeks here, serving as a special guest lecturer and resource person.

He will teach a special course, listed as Honors College 199 and entitled "Business Executive in Residence Colloquium: Business and Society." The course will deal with such topics as social insurance, public policy and risk bearing activities, the world as a corporation, and business for human and social values rather than economic advantage.

Enrollment in the class is open to matriculated and non-matriculated University students. The class will meet from 3:30 to 5:20, Mondays and Wednesdays, Feb. 2 to Feb. 25. Those interested in enrolling may contact Joy Poust at the Honors College, 686-5414.

Parks offer swim clinic

Eugene Parks and Recreation Specialized Recreation Program is offering a Handicapped Swim Clinic to train people to assist mentally or physically handicapped people to learn to swim.

The clinic will be from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday at Jefferson Memorial Pool, 16th Ave. and Jefferson Street.

The class is open to all people 18 and older at no charge. Participants are asked to bring a swim suit and a towel.

For more information phone Pam at 687-5311.
