Work hours boosted

The number of hours work-study students may work has been increased, according to the program director.

Lance Popoff, work-study director, announced in a memo to employers that students may now work up to 20 hours per week while classes are in session. Students may work a full 40-hour week during vacation periods.

The maximum number of hours per month will be computed at a rate of four hours per work day, with Monday through Friday defined as work days. For example, February has 20 work days. This is multiplied by four hours for a maximum of 80 hours that the work-study employe may work for that month.

For more information, call the Work-Study Office at 686-3221.

Enrollment incorrect

The Emerald incorrectly reported the number of students enrolled in the University's journalism school. Including pre-journalism majors, there are 654 journalism students.

The Emerald regrets the error.

KWAX offers opera

The University's public radio station KWAX, 91.1 FM, will broadcast Rossini's comic opera "The Barber of Seville" Saturday at 11 a.m. over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera Radio Network.

Saturday night at 9 p.m. KWAX will present National Public Radio's Folk Festival USA. The program will feature the Clarksville Old Time Music and Fiddlers Convention, which includes young and old musicians in performance of bluegrass and old time country music.

Highlights on this program include festival recordings of the late Sam McGee, the Missouri Corn-dodgers, W.L. Gregory and Clyde Davenport, and The Hot Mud Family.

Ski race scheduled

Wondering how to get started in cross-country skiing? A ski race might intimidate some beginners, but a race is planned for this weekend with beginners in mind.

The purpose of the race is to provide beginning and advanced skiers with a groomed surface on which to develop technique.

ASUO airs stand

The ASUO will hold a press conference at 11:30 today to air its stand on the alleged illegal construction of University tennis courts by the State Board of Higher Education.

Location of the conference will be posted in the EMU.

According to Mark Cogan, executive administrative assistant for legislative affairs, the ASUO will outline the basis for its allegation that the board acted illegally in spending approximately $430,000 of excess dormitory revenue to construct the facilities.

He says it will also explain the reasons for pursuing the issue and its plan for legal action if the board doesn't negotiate.

Rally protests fee hike

The Committee To Fight For The Right To An Education on the University of Oregon campus has called for a march and rally against the proposed 12 per cent tuition hike and statewide cuts in higher education. The rally will begin at 12 noon Monday, Feb. 2 at the EMU terrace on campus. Speeches, songs and guerilla theater are scheduled.

Group appoints head

The Oregon Student Public Interest Research Group (OSPIRG) has appointed Bill Van Dyke as their director effective Feb. 1, the organization announced Wednesday.

The 27-year-old Iowa native moved to Oregon in 1972 and began working with OSPIRG that same year.

"The major challenge OSPIRG faces," Van Dyke said, "is to continue to offer students new and different experiences to meet their needs. Their interests in public issues may change, and we have to be capable of reassessing what we offer them."

Van Dyke said he is excited about his new job. "I feel a strong commitment to what OSPIRG does, and this is a tremendous chance to help do it better."
