Season-inspired dances on tap

"Seasoning" will be presented tonight and Saturday night at 8 at the Gerlinger Studio Theatre, 345 Gerlinger Annex. Six dance department choreographers will perform 14 short works inspired by the seasons of time. The styles of dance will vary, but most will be in a modern vein.

Some of the music will be recorded, but two dances will be accompanied by live music. Others will contain only the music of movement.

The University Dance Department is sponsoring the concert. Admission is $1, half price for senior citizens. All proceeds will be applied to a dance scholarship fund.

Wilderness workshop slated

The Oregon Committee for the Humanities is co-sponsoring a workshop on wilderness Saturday in Harris Hall, 125 E. 8th Ave. from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The workshop will be a forum for the discussion of wilderness values and the place of wilderness in America's future. It will focus on the problems of overuse in wilderness areas of the Willamette National Forest and the future of remaining roadless areas in the forest.

Land managers, conservationists, foresters and representatives of economic interests will present their views of the problems and solutions.

For further information call 686-3730 and ask for Ned Duhnkrack.

Researcher prepares LCC talk

Suzanne Arms, noted researcher in the areas of women's health and childbirth will speak at Lane Community College Saturday night at 7:30 in 301 Forum.

Joining Arms will be educator and psychologist Richard Miles, an authority on infants and children. They will address "America's Stand on Birth and Infants." Admission for the talk is $2.50. The event is sponsored by the Eugene Women's Awareness Center, the Institute for Wholistic Childbirth and LCC.

Arms' photo-journalistic essay "Immaculate Deception" won critical acclaim for its examination of American childbirth methods.

Seminar listed in wrong room

The location of British economist Geoffrey Heal's seminar on economic theory and natural resources was incorrectly reported in Thursday's Emerald. Heal will speak at 3:30 p.m. in 142 Straub. The Emerald regrets the error.

Visitor to lend tricentennial tips

The centennial lecture series continues Monday night with a presentation by Dr. Norman Clark, Everett Washington Community College president. Clark will speak on "Notes for a Tricentennial Historian" at 7:30 in the Gerlinger Lounge.

Clark has written "Washington: A Bicentennial History" and "Milltown." There is no charge for the lecture, and visitors are welcome.

Prof plans archaeology lecture

William Trousdale, visiting distinguished professor of Oriental art at the Maude Kerns Art Center, will present his second free public lecture Monday at 8 p.m. in 177 Lawrence. He will speak on "Sistan Afghanistan: The 1975 Archaeological Campaign."

His lecture will be illustrated with slides and is co-sponsored by the art history department and the Eugene Chapter of the Archaeological Institute of America.

Architecture speech scheduled

"Country Boys in the City" is the title of University architecture professor Jerry Finrow's free public lecture Friday at 4:30 p.m. in 177 Lawrence.

Finrow will discuss the national Romantic movement in Finnish architecture from 1880 to 1930. The lecture is part of a spring series sponsored by the School of Architecture and Allied Arts.
