Oregon coast boasts of bigger curves

They could never have filmed Beach Blanket Bingo in Newport, but that's okay 'cause the jetties and driftwood that dot the Oregon coastline are a lot more magnificent than Annette Funicello's cleavage anyway. For Eugene residents, the 26 miles between Florence and Yachats offer an especially pleasant day's agenda. Just north of Florence are a number of beaches begging to be strolled upon, but after about 10 miles the sand is replaced by rock. A little over 10 miles north of Florence is the Sea Lion caves. If it's a stormy day, the lions will be hanging out inside, and it's worth the $2 elevator ride to go down to sea-level and watch them. On nice days however, the large mammals, relatives of the seal, spend their time soaking up the sun on the large rocks near the entrance to the caves. The second turn-out north of the Sea Lion Cave buildings is a good vantage point to watch the animals lie on the rocks and play in the surf. Twelve to fifteen miles further up the road are Devil's Churn and Cape Perpetua. The churn is a place where the ocean has worn away at a natural fault and created a narrow passage that causes the breakers to erupt into foam and die with a thundering crash against the back of an unseen cave.

Ashland: much ado about plays

Tickets for this summer's Oregon Shakespearean Festival in Ashland are going fast. The festival offers six plays from June 12 to Sept. 19 in two different theatres.

Seatings are especially low for performances during June and July while good seating is still available for late August and September. An availability list is on display at the EMU Main desk.

Three Shakespeare plays, "Much Ado About Nothing," "King Lear" and "Henry VI, Part 2", are presented in the Elizabethan Stagehouse outdoors as evening performances. The matinee offerings are performed indoors in the Angus Bowmer Theatre. These plays are "Comedy of Errors" by William Shakespeare, "The Devil's Disciple" by George Bernard Shaw and "The Little Foxes" by Lillian Hellman.

There are three prices for both indoor and outdoor plays, $7, $5, and $3.50. Children under 12 are admitted for half price but no children under 3 are allowed. Backstage tours are conducted daily, except on Sundays, at 10 a.m. with admissions being $2. Tickets for the plays and tours are available by phoning the box office at (503) 482-4331 or through the EMU main desk. The EMU charges for the phone call.

Directly above the churn towers Cape Perpetua. Used by the Coastal Indians as a vantage point to guard against attack by sea, the top of the cape is now a state park, and on a clear day provides a vantage point hard to beat. In addition, the lush vegetation along the north side of the peak creates an almost prehistoric rain forest atmosphere perfect for strolling and thinking.

With an early start, the trip from Eugene to Cape Perpetua and back provides a good full day break away from the city. And besides, driftwood makes such great mobiles.
