

Safety eyeglasses now available

University employees subject to eye hazards can now obtain safety eyeglasses, the environmental health and safety office announced.

Although payment for the glasses will be the employee's responsibility, costs will be held to a minimum. For standard single lens glasses with plastic safety frames and case, the charge will be $11.55.

While the office explains no "Far out, contemporary frame styles," are available, the selection does include metal frames. For more information contact the health physics office.

Film showing slated

A showing of 15 Eugene area filmmakers will be held at the Community Center for the Performing Arts at 8th Avenue and Lincoln Street, Eugene. The Festival is Wednesday from 8 p.m. to midnight. There will be a wine cellar with wine, cheese and crackers. Cost for the evening is $1.50.

Germans attend summer school

Twenty-three students from Germany arrived at the University Thursday to spend the summer absorbed in Eugene's life style and studying computer science.

The group comes from Bildungszentrum, a two-year computer college in Paderborn, Germany. Each member is taking eight credit hours in the University's summer session and will be on campus until Aug. 8.

Ron Trebon, assistant administrator of summer session, says a similar group of 17 German students visited the University in 1974. The groups are not on an exchange program, and supply all the necessary funds themselves.

Reinmuth advances to acting dean

James Reinmuth, professor of quantitative methods, has been appointed acting dean of the University's business school. The one-year appointment, effective last Thursday, was announced last Wednesday by Harry Alpert, University vice president for academic affairs.

The new acting dean has been a member of the University faculty since 1967. Director of doctoral programs within the business school for the past two years, he received the University's Ersted Award for Distinguished Teaching in 1975.

He earned his B.A. degree from the University of Washington, M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Oregon State University.

Reinmuth replaces Richard West, who has accepted a new post as Dean of the Amos Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College, in Hanover, N.H.

A ten member faculty committee has been at work since February searching for a permanent appointee, and will continue.

Class offered for canoe owners

Beginning and Intermediate canoeing classes are being offered for people who can B.Y.O.C. (bring your own canoe). These classes are designed for new canoe owners who would like instruction in the proper and safe use of their new crafts.

The beginning B.Y.O.C. class meets today through Saturday. Intermediate B.Y.O.C. meets Aug. 3-7. Fee for classes is $8.

Registration is at the Eugene Parks and Recreation office, Room 105, city hall. For more information phone Mary or Ross at 687-5307.

Center hosts wide musical array

The Community Center for the Performing Arts at 8th Avenue and Lincoln Street in Eugene will play host to three name groups this week.

First, jazz virtuoso Mose Allison and his trio will perform tonight at 9 and 11 p.m. Allison's keyboard work, live and on over 15 albums, has brought rave reviews from critics and fellow musicians alike. Opening the shows will be Jessie Gray, who has been delivering her scatological humor and downright bawdy piano playing at the Feed Mill and the Eugene Hotel recently.

Second, doing two shows on Saturday, is the Ian Matthews band. Matthews founded the British folk-rock group, Fairport Convention. He will perform here with his new band at 9 and 11 p.m.

On Sunday Tom Rush will return to Eugene for two shows at 8 and 10:30 p.m. Be advised: this folk singer's last Eugene performance sold out in advance.

Tickets for Matthews and Rush are $3 in advance and $3.50 at the door. Advance tickets for all three are available at Crystalship, Sun Shop, and Everybody's Records.

Ever thought of becoming a Peace Corps Volunteer? No question, working overseas for 2 years in the Peace Corps is a lot different than working in the United States.

Even though Peace Corps assignments mean long hours, low pay, and a certain amount of frustration, there are rewards for special people. Like working and living in a developing country. Learning a new language and culture. But most of all, helping people where there's work to be done.

Apparently, these rewards are enough to attract many Americans. 65,000 since 1961. And 68 countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Pacific continue to ask for the services of Peace Corps Volunteers.

Currently, the Peace Corps has volunteer opportunities in a wide variety of skills and disciplines. These include architecture, forestry, business, accounting, nursing, fisheries, secondary education, math, general science, engineering, home economics, urban planning, the physical sciences, french, and many other areas. Some openings require an advanced degree plus experience.

The deadline for applying for programs that begin this Fall is right around the corner. A Peace Corps representative can give you complete information on the exact nature of each opening and the requirements. An interview is all it takes.

If you think you're qualified and are prepared to find your own special experience and reward in the Peace Corps, come and talk to us.

MISCELLANEOUS

The Foreign Language Laboratory, 216 Friendly Hall, will be open the following hours during the eight-week summer session: 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, 6:30-9 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

Scheduled to open Friday, the Lane Community College production of "Man of La Mancha" is sold out. Director Ed Ragozzino has added a performance—next Tuesday—to meet the demand for tickets. At $4 apiece the reserved-only tickets are for sale at the college's box office (747-4559). "Man of La Mancha" won several Tony Awards in 1965, as well as the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award for best musical in that year.

The University Museum of Art has received $2,500 from the City of Eugene's Transient Room Tax Fund to help pay expenses of a major fall exhibition of local crafts.

Local crafts persons have been invited to submit works for the show, which will be on display from Sept. 26 to Oct. 24.
