To err is human and in an effort to prove the Emerald's basic humanity, Wednesday's paper contained a few mistakes.

An article about the controversy over the interpretation of Ballot Measure No. 9 contained an incorrect identification. Chris Thomas is an attorney for the Oregonians for Nuclear Safeguards. John Purcell, a spokesman for the Oregonians Against the Ban on Nuclear Energy, is a senior sales engineer for Westinghouse Electric Corporation.

The story on new registration procedures misreported the number of credits a student must complete to qualify as a senior. A student must have completed at least 135 credit hours at the time of registration in order to qualify as a senior and have first crack at Mac Court registration.
