Camp directors recruiting help

Summer camp directors will be at the EMU Tuesday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for the annual Camp Staff Recruitment Day sponsored by the Oregon Section of the American Camping Association and the Department of Recreation and Park Management.

Camp directors from as many as two dozen Oregon, Washington and Idaho camps will interview students for a wide variety of summer camp positions including camp counselors, waterfront, nature and art specialists, unit leaders, assistant directors and business managers.

Most camps run a six to eight-week session plus a week of pre-camp training, offering a salary plus room and board. University credits also are available through certain departments and camps.

The Oregon section of the American Camping Association also operates a placement file for summer jobs at P.O. Box 66, Portland, 97202.

Kids' art class offered weekly

Arts and crafts for preschoolers aged 3 to 6 is offered 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Petersen Park Barn, 3865 Royal Ave.

The $12 fee includes all supplies. Registration is between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. at the Petersen Park Barn. For more information phone Linda Nelson at 689-6160.

Series examines teaching

Statistics reveal the number of teachers needed to staff the nation's schools will continue to decline until 1980. Why then do so many people continue to choose teaching careers?

A special three-part radio series, "Opinions in Education," will paint a portrait of the American teacher and examine the teaching profession. The hour-long program is heard locally on KWAX-FM, the University's public radio station, Mondays at 3:30 p.m.

"A Portrait of the American Teacher" begins today at 3:30 p.m. on KWAX-FM, 91.1. Parts two and three will be heard Jan. 31 and Feb. 7.

Organist plays tonight

Organist William Porter will present a free concert tonight at 8 at Central Lutheran Church, 18th and Potter streets. Currently completing a doctorate in Musical Arts at Yale University, Porter is music director for a large Cleveland parish church.

Free-will donations will be accepted at this segment of the Organ Dedication Series.

Ecology lectures slated

The economics department will sponsor two seminars this week dealing with the ecology of micromotives and the leasing of public resources.

The first lecture features Thomas Schelling, economics professor and director of the Kennedy School of Public Policy at Harvard, Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in 360 Condon. His topic, "Ecology of Micromotives," is discussed in his paper on the subject, which is on reserve in the economics department at 435 PLC.

Hayne Leland, of the University of California at Berkeley, will talk on the optimal leasing of public resources Thursday at 3:30 p.m. in 360 Condon.

Canadian to visit campus

Gordon Brown, consul general of Canada, will pay a courtesy visit to the University today in conjunction with a speaking engagement at Oregon State University Tuesday.

The visit will include a brief meeting and luncheon with University officials and an open forum with University political science students at 3 p.m. in the EMU, room to be posted.

Consul General Brown, stationed in Seattle, Wash., is a veteran Canadian diplomat. He joined the Canadian Department of External Affairs in 1947. From 1960 to 1965, he served in consulate posts in Switzerland, South Africa and the Soviet Union.
