Mini-job faire slated today

The first in a series of "mini-job faires" for students in Community Service and Public Affairs is scheduled today from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the basement of Hendricks Hall.

Jan Wylie of Oregon State Civil Service will answer questions for students interested in possible careers within the state.

As a resource person, she will speak about civil service job trends in the state and estimate state employment opportunities.

Her appearance is sponsored by the CSPA's Job Placement Center.

Glassblowing class offered

A glassblowing class will be offered at the Southwest Oregon Museum of Science and Industry for seven weeks starting tonight.

The course is offered Wednesdays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and costs $20. Students will learn open flame glassblowing and will receive information about how to make their own equipment.

The class is limited to the first 16 people who register at the education department, Fifth Avenue and Willamette Street, or call 344-5248.

Ideal Society session set

The Students International Meditation Society is sponsoring a special presentation to "Create an Ideal Society" today. The presentation will include special films, videotapes and speakers and will run all day in the EMU, rooms to be posted.

Topics will include "Excellence in Action," the TM program in sports (9:30 to 11 a.m.); "Neurophysiology of Enlightenment," a report detailing conclusions that can be drawn from nearly 300 scientific studies on the TM technique and its effects, 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.; "A New Fringe Benefit," an explanation of

RSB to rally at EMU today

The Revolutionary Student Brigade and other concerned students will raise questions about Standard Oil of California's investments in South Africa when company representatives visit campus today.

Recruiters for Standard Oil will be interviewing potential employees at Susan Campbell Hall. The students will gather on the EMU Terrace at 1:30 p.m. Following the rally the students will go to the placement office on the second floor of Susan Campbell Hall.

Errors plague Emerald again

Tuesday's story about Pres. Jimmy Carter's proposed higher education budget contained an error. According to Gerald Bogen, University vice-president for student affairs, acceptance of Carter's budget could result in an enrollment drop at the University of 2,500 students.

In addition, novelist and critic William Gass, who was mentioned in a story about the writer's colloquium being held on campus this week, is a philosophy professor at Washington University in St. Louis.

Joan Benson to perform

Joan Benson, University music professor, will present a small and informal program of 15th through 18th century clavichord music tonight at 8 in the University's Beall Concert Hall. Admission is free.

Benson will play a Baroque suite of Johann Jakob Froberger and selections from "Probestucke Sonata VI," by Carl Phillip Emanuel Bach. Works from other composers will also be included.

Benson, who joined the University's music faculty this year, has given recitals at the University of California and the Winter Conclave of the American Guild of Organists. January, she was featured on the national radio broadcast of Canada's "Mostly Music."

today, room to be announced, to discuss supplemental budget requests. This is the last preliminary meeting for supplemental requests until April 22.

LECTURES

Attorney Charles Porter will discuss "Controlling Secret Police" as part of the week-long series of events on the Bill of Rights sponsored by the Student Bar Association and Lane County American Civil Liberties Union in Room 125, Law at 12:30 today.

Eckankar, The Path of Total Awareness, will present an introductory lecture along with the film,

"ECK: A Way of Life," at 7:30 tonight in the EMU, room to be posted. Admission is free.

MISCELLANEOUS

The Secondary Division of ESCAPE will present an all-tutor workshop featuring a panel of members of school district to discuss motivation and the behavior of children in secondary schools. The workshop begins at 7 p.m. in the EMU Forum.

Panel members will be Don Jackson, South Eugene principal; Roger Diddock, Madison Junior High vice principal; Nancy McDaniels, a teacher at Madison and Ron Spiedell, head teacher at the Opportunity Center.
