

Senator to visit CEPM

State Sen. Frank Roberts, D-Multnomah, Portland, will visit campus Thursday and Friday. He will talk with faculty, staff and students of the College of Education's Center for Educational Policy and Management (CEPM) about education and the legislative process.

At 1:30 p.m. Thursday, he will be at a general meeting open to the public where he will speak on the present status of educational legislation and will answer questions. The meeting will be in Room 004, Casea Hall on Kincaid Street across from PLC. At 7 p.m., he will address a policy development class.

Friday at 9:30 a.m., Roberts will have individual and small group discussions with interested persons in Room 101, Casea. At 2 p.m. he will have a session in Room 004, Casea, in which he will discuss his general impressions of CEPM, the University and education. The public and press are invited to this session.

Roberts' appearance is part of CEPM's program in which educational leaders throughout the state come to the University campus to discuss contemporary educational issues with CEPM faculty, staff and students. He has been active in education in Portland for 30 years, serving on the board which established Mt. Hood Community College at Gresham. He has a Ph.D. from Stanford University and is a professor of speech communication at Portland State University.

Conference set for Democrats

Oregon Democrats will come to Salem Saturday to talk with Gov. Bob Straub, their congressional delegation in Washington, Democrats in the Legislature, Atty. Gen. Jim Redden and Labor Commissioner Bill Stevenson as part of the Fourth Biennial Grass Roots Issues Forum to be held at Willamette University.

The day's activities conclude with a banquet and speech by Congressman James Corman of California, joint sponsor of the Kennedy-Corman National Health Care Bill.

An issues panel will begin at 1:30 p.m. and continue to 5 p.m. Grass roots Democrats from throughout Oregon will exchange ideas with the party's governmental leadership on such issues as education, human and legal rights, consumer affairs and labor, women's rights, revenue and taxation, health welfare and aging, agriculture, land use, energy and transportation and elections and party reform.

Registration opens at 9 a.m. at Putnam Center. The price is $3. All Democrats are invited to attend.

This year's gathering will also include a labor-industry breakfast scheduled for 8 a.m. at the Keg and Platter restaurant. Reports will be heard from congressmen and legislators. Gubernatorial assistant Bud Kramer, Stevenson and Redden will also participate.

Mothers give fashion show

The Eugene-Springfield chapter of the University's Mother's Club will present a spring fashion show at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority house, 1680 Alder St.

The show will demonstrate how persons can make their own spring garments. The public is invited and tickets, costing $2 per person, will be available at the door. Proceeds will go toward various University projects and scholarships.

Tax extensions available

The Internal Revenue Service has a special form available which provides an automatic two-month extension of time for taxpayers unable to file their federal income tax returns by Friday's deadline.

Ralph Short, IRS district director for Oregon, explained that Form 4868, Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File, does not extend the time for the paying the tax. It simply grants a two-month extension to file the return, he said.

Short advised taxpayers utilizing Form 4868 to estimate the tax owed for the year. This amount, he said, should accompany the application for the extension of time.

The Form 4868 must be filed on or before the due date of the tax return, Short explained. Additional extensions of time, due to very unusual circumstances, may be available, Short said, by utilizing Form 2688, Application for Extension of Time to File.

These forms, Short said, are available at all local offices of IRS. The form also may be obtained through IRS's statewide tax forms order telephone service. The statewide toll-number is 1-800-452-1996.

Art service gets new title

The University Museum of Art's statewide art services has a new name. Visual Arts Resources, according to Michael Whitenack, supervisor of the service, more accurately reflects the services available from the art museum.

"Our previous emphasis was on traveling art exhibits and artists' workshops," he said. "We've expanded services to include sponsoring specialized competitions for artists and community conferences on the display and protection of art works; providing consultation and advice to artists on how to survive, including advice on how to enter competitions, develop grant proposals and ship art work; and acting as a referral service between artists and agencies and organizations which may want to exhibit art work for special events and programs.

"The name change won't take place overnight," he continued. "We are in the process of notifying over 450 service contacts about the name change as well as supply vendors, museum patrons and others who use our services."

"It will take time," he said. "We have some exhibits out on the road right now under the title of 'Statewide Art Services' that won't be returned to us for two years. But we are starting to use the new name immediately."

Female sexuality workshop set for Saturday

A women's sexuality workshop will be offered Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. by local counselor and body work therapist Carol Green.

Green will use a variety of techniques to get women in touch with their sexual selves. Fantasy, guided meditation, yoga, breath work and other body work methods will be used.

The workshop will be conducted in a small group atmosphere. Advance reservations are necessary and a $15 to $25 fee will be charged based on ability to pay. Green can be reached for reservations at 344-4455.

Stamps depict Indian pottery

The U.S. Postal Service is issuing a new block of four 13-cent commemorative stamps featuring Pueblo Indian art.

The Pueblo Indians of the American Southwest were noted for their skills in making pottery. Each of the four semi-jumbo size stamps depicts a painting of a piece of pottery. The pots featured are located in museum collections in New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado.

The Pueblo Indian Art stamp will go on sale in Eugene Post Offices Thursday.
