Alternative TV show begins

An alternative to the usual Saturday cartoon shows will soon be available on TV to area children.

"The Kids' Show," to premier Saturday, at 12:15 p.m. on KOZY, Cable 11, is produced by the Division of Broadcast Services on campus.

According to the new series' producer, Mike Moskovitz, the show is being produced to help children have a better appreciation of books. "Instead of just having a person sit there and read stories into the camera, the 'Kids' Show' storyteller will make the book come to life using various props, puppets, illustrations, animations and so on," he says.

Canoe club sponsors race

The Eugene Canoe and Kayak Club will sponsor a Willamette River Race Sunday at noon from Jasper Park to Alton Baker Park.

Registration for the race is from 10 a.m. to noon and entry fee is $5 per boat. For more information, contact Terry McCabe at 687-8595.

search. The Public Scholars Research Bank has published a booklet containing 112 proposals for study submitted by public interest groups across the country.

The proposed topics range from solar water heaters to children's rights and include scientific, technical, policy and law reform studies. The Research Bank requests call upon students and faculty members to use the proposals as subjects for papers, articles, books and thesis.

According to Research Bank editor Louis Sirico, the public interest community and the academic community can help meet each other's needs. "Students and faculty are often searching for meaningful topics of study. In contrast, public interest groups need research in innumerable areas, but lack the resources to perform it. The Research Bank brings both groups together."

The Research Bank works as a clearinghouse. Scholars choosing a proposed topic notify the bank and the group requesting the specific research. In return, the bank and the groups make available their resources. Upon completion, the scholar submits copies of the final study to the Research Bank and requesting group.

A copy of the Research Bank proposals is available for $3.50 prepaid from Public Scholars Research Bank, P.O. Box 19367, Washington, D.C., 20036.

GTFF sets open meeting

The Graduate Teaching Fellows Federation (GTFF) is sponsoring an open meeting of all GTF's at 7 tonight in Room 101, EMU.

The GTFF recently won the right to represent GTF's in collective bargaining negotiations, culminating an 18-month struggle to win recognition. The victory margin for the GTFF was more than 3-2, with 85 per cent of eligible GTF's voting.

Tonight's meeting will spotlight the structure of the union, including its present and future leadership, and the contract to be negotiated with the University. All GTF's, including non-union members and future GTF's are invited to attend and present ideas on what the contract should include and how it should be negotiated.

Folk dancers schedule show

The Cabataan Folk Dancers from Seattle will perform traditional Filipino folk dances Friday night at Condon Elementary School, 1787 Agate St.

Sponsored by the Asian American Student Union and the Eugene Filipino American Community, the performance will begin at 8 and end at 10 p.m. Admission is $1 and tickets are available at the EMU main desk.

Educators visit campus

A delegation of 12 educational leaders from seven countries will visit the University's Center for Educational Policy and Management (CEPM) Friday.

The group's visit to CEPM is part of a three-month program on cultural aspects of educational leadership conducted by the Culture Learning Institute of the East-West Center in Honolulu. Participants in the program are from Afghanistan, Australia, India, New Zealand, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand and the United States.

While at the University, the group will meet with University faculty members Harry Wolcott, Richard Schmuck, and Richard Carlson from the Center and tour the ERIC Clearinghouse on Educational Management.

The group also will meet with University Pres. William Boyd and will participate in a conference on "Evolving Educational Policy in Foreign Countries," which is being sponsored jointly by the CEPM Graduate Student Council and the University Council for Educational Administration.
