

Special track meet set

Only personal marks will be at stake May 21, when an estimated 1,200 of Oregon's mentally retarded citizens compete in the state track and field finals of the Oregon Special Olympics.

Competition begins at 8 p.m. at Hayward Field. Entered are mentally retarded youngsters and adults from throughout Oregon.

Special Olympians compete according to age and ability grouping for individual medals in the 50 and 220-yard dashes 440-yard run, 440-yard relay, one mile run, standing long jump, high jump and softball throw. Entrants must be at least eight years old.

Gold, silver and bronze medals are presented for the top three places in each event. All contestants, however, receive awards for participating.

This year's state finals are being cosponsored by Oregon Special Olympics Inc., the 20-30 Active Club of Eugene and the University. The day-long program also will offer a variety of instructional clinics and recreational activities for the contestants.

The University needs volunteers to help with the events. Interested persons can contact Effie Fairchild, associate professor of recreation and park management, at x4134.

Special Olympics is an international program of athletic training and competition for the mentally retarded. It's founder and sponsor is the Joseph Kennedy Jr. Foundation.

'Ideal Citizens' sought

The Eugene World Plan Center for the Transcendental Meditation program is seeking nominations for Ideal Citizen Awards.

Ten awards will be presented Tuesday, June 21, at 8 p.m. at Harris Hall. The awards will conclude a week-long summer celebration of the Age of Enlightenment and on that day individuals in more than 450 communities throughout the nation will be honored in similar ceremonies.

Nominations forms are available at the Eugene World Plan Center, 170 East 11th Ave., Suite 204 and are due by May 31. Award categories include development of consciousness, natural law and order, cultural integrity and world harmony, education and enlightenment, celebrations and fulfillment, progress and prosperity, inspiration and information, research and development, capitals of the Age of Enlightenment and health and immortality.

IT DOESN'T TAKE THREE YEARS OF LAW SCHOOL FOR A CAREER IN LAW

The School of Paralegal Studies at the University of West Los Angeles offers a program for college graduates interested in a career in law but not wanting to spend three or four years in law school. At the University of West Los Angeles, the Certificate as a Paralegal Specialist in Probate, Litigation, Real Estate or Corporations may be earned in only one semester of day study.

The School of Paralegal Studies maintains a successful placement staff whose sole responsibility is to place our graduates with law firms, governmental agencies, corporations, and other organizations needing personnel trained in the law.

Child care bill hearing slated

Committee No. 4 of the Joint Ways and Means Committee will hold a public hearing on HB 2459, the $3.65 million student-parent child care bill, today at 1 p.m. in Room H170 of the Capitol building in Salem.

The ASUO is chartering buses to take supporters of the bill to the hearing. The buses will leave from the Child Care and Development Center at 1511 Moss St. at 10:30 a.m. A prehearing meeting will be held at noon in Room 50 of the Capitol building. A seat on the bus may be reserved by calling Cathie Loomis at 686-4384.

Foot in mouth

Two dates mentioned in Wednesday's Emerald need to be corrected. The Shrine Circus is set for Saturday, May 21, and will feature the Polack Bros., billed as the "World's Biggest Traveling Indoor Circus."

In addition, the Division of Broadcast Service's "Sideline Report" featuring University athletic directors John Caine and Becky Sisley's discussion of the University's response to Title IX will air Wednesday, May 18, on KOZY-TV Cable 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Friends slate meal, speaker

Friends of the University Library will hold their annual meeting and dinner in Eugene May 20.

Featured speaker will be Thomas Vaughn, executive director of the Oregon Historical Society and editor-in-chief of "Oregon Historical Quarterly." Vaughn will speak on "Oral Tradition and Oregon History" during a 7:15 p.m. dinner at the Black Angus Restaurant, 2133 Franklin Blvd.

The program also will include a brief "State of the Library" report by H. William Axford, University Librarian, and the election of five new members to the Friends' Board of Directors.

The dinner and business meeting is open to the public. Dinner reservations are required. The reservations, at $8.50 per person, should be made with University librarian H. William Axford by Tuesday.

Group to hear attorney

An Affirmative Action workshop will be presented Monday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the Gerlinger Alumni Lounge by students in the course, Equal Opportunity Services.

The workshop aims to examine the legal basis for affirmative action, laws requiring equal education and equal employment and steps for establishing and maintaining an effective affirmative action program.

Guest speaker will be attorney Jane Edwards, equal employment opportunity coordinator, State of Oregon Affirmative Action Office, Salem.

All interested persons are invited to attend. For further information, call 686-3807.

University mothers meet

The State Board of the University Mothers Clubs will have a meeting during Parents Weekend on campus. It will meet Friday, at 10 a.m. in Dunn Hall, which is located in the Hamilton Complex on 13th Avenue and Agate Street.

Parking will be available in the lot on 13th Avenue and Agate Street. There will be a speaker from the Student Health Service and election of officers. All University mothers are invited to an open meeting, which will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. at Gerlinger Hall on University Street. This will be an opportunity to get acquainted and learn more about the University.

Persian rugs to be sold

A large selection of Persian and Oriental rugs, which are becoming scarce, will be sold at a special exhibit at the International Dunes, 3350 Gateway, Springfield Friday at 7 p.m.

The rugs have been gathered from weavers in Iran by George and Victor Barkhordarian, principals of Barkhordarian Iranian Rug Weavers, with U.S. headquarters in San Francisco.

These rugs, ranging in size from 2 x 3 feet to 13 x 20 feet, are made from sheeps' wool, silk or a mixture of the two. Patterns are unusual and color gradations go from muted earth tones to the palest of pastels.

Small city seminar set

Management of small cities will be the subject of a one-week seminar being planned at the University.

The seminar will be offered July 18 to 22 and will concentrate on problems of administering small municipalities. Sessions will focus on law, finance and personnel matters, line operations with police, public works and parks and recreation.

Jack Collins, city manager of Ontario, will serve as visiting instructor.

The seminar will offer graduate or undergraduate credit from the University. Details on fees and registration may be obtained by contacting Bryan Downes, Division of Public Affairs and International Development, School of Community Service and Public Affairs.
