

...et al— Police symposium set

Consolidation of police services will be the topic of discussion of symposium Wednesday sponsored by the University's graduate school.

The program will begin at 12:30 p.m. with a no-host lunch at the Faculty Club. Members of the research team coordinating the symposium and other guest speakers will meet informally with interested persons. Michael Pendleton, assistant professor of CSPA, is head of the research team.

From 2:30 to 3:30 p.m., Eugene Police Chief Pierce Brooks will speak about "Contracting for Police Services vs. Community-Based Policing" in Room 101, EMU.

From 7:30 to 9 p.m. Hubert Locke, associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Washington, will speak on "Community Understanding and Control of the Police" in Room 101, EMU.

Locke has conducted contract research on urban crime and social planning for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and is currently on the board of directors of the Police Foundation. He is the author of several books and articles including "The Detroit Riot of 1967," "The Care and Feeding of White Liberals" and "Police Review Boards: A Second Look."

Plays to dwell on loneliness

Two new plays by Dennis Kennedy, on campus this year as visiting associate professor of English, will be presented Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. in the Pocket Playhouse in Villard Hall.

The plays, "Telephone Man" and "Body and Voice," are described as works "for actor and electronic media" and experiment with using different means to investigate loneliness. The free performances will be the premieres of both plays.

Dennis Kennedy is a playwright with a growing reputation. His recent full-length play, "Remembering and Forgetting," will be performed professionally this August.

Conservation day slated

A variety of speakers and music will be on tap Wednesday for the Survival Center's Conservation Day aimed at increasing public and student awareness of the energy crisis.

The program will give students tips on how they can conserve and will also act as a preliminary event for a three-day Conservation Festival the center is planning for next fall, according to Marilyn Hofer of the center.

Beginning at 9:45 a.m., bluegrass band "No Water" will play in the EMU courtyard.

Tom Sante of the Eugene Water and Electric Board (EWEB) will speak on energy conservation at 10:30 a.m. in the EMU Forum Room.

Following Sante's talk, Camilla Pratt, also of EWEB, will discuss rate structures at 11:30 a.m.

Prof. C.A. Bowers of the University's education department will speak on the "Ecological Crisis: Educational and Social Change" at 12:30 p.m. in the Forum Room. Bowers is the author of "Cultural Literacy for Freedom."

Dan Knapp will discuss solar greenhouses at 1:30 p.m. in the Forum Room.

A jazz improvisation group will play beginning at 2:30 p.m. in the courtyard followed by the John Bishop Quartet.

All events are free and open to the public. Additional events are planned for today and Friday. The schedule will be posted in the EMU, according to Ken Miller of the Survival Center.
