

Infant's drink topic of film

Two showings of "Baby Bottle Disease" are scheduled in the EMU (room to be posted) today at 12 and 12:30 p.m., sponsored by the EMU board.

A group called "Clergy and Laity Concerned," (CALC) which distributes the film, is promoting a nation-wide boycott of Nestle Company products. The group alleges that the infant formula marketed worldwide by Nestle is causing malnutrition and death in Third World babies. The film describes the CALC charges against the Swiss-based company's marketing practices.

Don Steele, with the EMU board, said the EMU cannot legally boycott the goods, but will label them as Nestle products. Right now the EMU does not buy any boycotted goods, but has in the past.

Music students give concerts

Two University music school students will give their degree recitals this week in Beall Concert Hall.

Jim Pelley will perform his Master's degree cello recital Saturday at 8 p.m.

Pamela West-Mann will present her Doctoral degree piano recital on Wednesday.

Both recitals are free.

Japanese film to be shown

Shiokari Pass, a new film from the producers of "The Hiding Place," will be shown at the Emerald Baptist Church, 19th Avenue and Patterson Street, Sunday at 7 p.m.

Med school has search service

The Emerald incorrectly reported the University Science Library has a "Medline," a medical data computer search service.

The medline available for student use is at the University Medical School in Portland.

Disabled workshop slated

The Eugene Commission on the Rights of the Handicapped will offer a "How To Workshop" on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Amazon Community Center, 2700 Hilyard St.

State and community representatives in the areas of employment, court systems, rights and community resources for the handicapped will conduct workshops and panel discussions.

Topics to be discussed are resume writing, affirmative action, job searching, job interviewing, architectural barriers, survival in the court system, transportation, housing and government lobbying and legislation.

Interpreters for the deaf and materials in Braille will be available. Transportation will also be provided.

For more information, contact Carol Johansen at 686-3807.

Loan solution approved

The Oregon Student Lobby (OSL) won preliminary approval of its proposed solution to student loan defaults at a national conference, but its "income contingency plan" no longer includes the pooling of loans in a cohort as the Emerald reported this week.

According to Dan Garner, executive coordinator of OSL, the new plan contains the concept of refinancing loans to make payments more flexible to students.

The OSL will hold a public meeting of its board of directors Saturday at Oregon State University, Music 110 at 10 a.m.

Bank prof picked scholar

George Kaufman, John B. Rogers professor of banking and finance and director of the Center for Capital Market Research at the University, has been selected as the first visiting scholar to the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency at the U.S. Treasury.

During his stay in Washington, Kaufman will be continuing his research on alternative residential mortgage plans, bank underwriting of municipal revenue bonds, innovation in financial markets and bank capital adequacy.
