Course Outline: How to be Born Again 336
Instructor: Christ, Jesus
Required reading: Bible
Meets through eternity
3 credits

This course will be taught in a seminar format. Students will be encouraged to work independently since the instructor is temporarily indisposed. There will be occasional guest lectures from God and others specialists. Grading will be based on several quizzes and a final on Friday of Armageddon week. The department has certain rules governing finals, and grading procedure will be as follows: A) Saint, B) Good Samaritan, C) Below Celestial snuff, D and F) Doomed to perpetual Hell.

In the past some students have complained about the severity of grading in this class. Complaints may be registered with the academic advising committee. Finally, vacations are short, but they will not be lengthened at the expense of this class. Students wishing to take Armageddon early should drop the class now--J.C.

Someday, the world will be living in peace, enjoying clean water and learning to love rather than to exploit. Well, we at Honeywell haven't quite worked that one out yet, but we're trying. At Honeywell, today is happening tomorrow.

Edmund's note

The other day, while walking around Mount EMU, one of our more divine staff members was hit over the head by inspiration and dragged off into a corner. His first reaction was, "What, ho?" but he

Demos set Eugene meeting

Lane County Democrats have two rabbits in the hat this year.

First, with a current registration of 82,240, they will have the second largest delegation at the party's state convention March 31- April 2. The 82 delegates and 41 alternates will be surpassed in number only by Multnomah County with 196 delegates.

To top that off, the City of soon became possessed with an inspiration to write. Unable to cure this with penicillin, we allowed him to produce the following:

The Ten Commandments for Feature Writers

1. Thou shalt write penetrating, in-depth, trenchant, cutting, perceptive, socially relevant stories that will change the course of history and prompt letters to the editor.
2. Thou shalt not write stories on old ladies.
3. Thou shalt not compromise truth except for a very good joke.
4. Thou shalt use description.
5. Thou shalt not use pretentious diction or be a pendantic megalomaniac.
6. Thou shalt not be corny.
7. Thou shalt not merely spectate in life, but shall jump on the stage whenever possible.

8. Thou shalt triple space and use periods.

9. Thou shalt interpret and thou shalt interpret correctly. When thou art in the ultimate-truth business, thou cannot afford to blow it.

10. Thou shalt base all stories on ultimate truth as printed in Ultimate Truth revised standard edition, 3rd printing, unabridged.

Consumer tip: Our reports indicate that if you are a safe driver, most likely you are being ripped off by your auto insurance company. It seems safe drivers are bearing the social cost of daily accidents. Well folks, our advice is to get your money's worth. Go out right this minute and have a head-on collision. Total your car. Murder a pedestrian. As long as you are paying for an accident, you might as well cash in.

Eugene is hosting the convention for the first time since 1968, according to state chairer and University Prof. James Klonoski, Political Science.

The need for 123 county representatives means ample opportunity for those registered Democrats willing to forego one weekend's routine for this challenging, quadrennial experience. Bill Dwyer, Democratic party county chairer, encourages anyone interested to look into becoming a delegate.

Delegate election will occur at the county convention tentatively scheduled for the end of January. Further information can be obtained by contacting Dwyer at the Lane County Commissioner's office.

If the time factor proves unfavorable for involvement in either the county or state convention, there is the alternative of attending the Young Oregon Democrats state convention. Tentatively set for March 11, the convention will debate issues and complete a platform that will be submitted to the full state convention three weeks later. Contact chairer David McTeague for more details at 485-6105.
