A job for the OLCC?

Freeway travelers had a break from Interstate 5 monotony last Thursday just south of the Corvallis turnoff. The unlucky driver of this truck was heading north when his rig fishtailed onto the freeway median. Although out of sight, a guard was appointed to protect this precious liquid until the owners of the merchandise could arrange to have it picked up. Later, photographer Mike Grady said wistfully, "My only regret was that I was carrying a camera instead of a tap."

Egypt site of $1 million Japanese pyramid

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egyptian workers in flowing robes laid the cornerstone Monday of what will be a Japanese-built, 36-foot-high pyramid, the first in the land of the pharaohs in nearly 4,500 years.

Chanting "pray to the Prophet" as sand whipped their faces, 20 workers strained at the ropes and moved a one-ton limestone block into place. Nearly 3,000 blocks, some weighing 2.5 tons, will be needed.

Japanese archeologists from Wasseda University near Tokyo are testing various theories on how the pyramids were built, including one by the Greek historian

Herodotus suggesting wooden cranes and ramps were used.

The Nippon Television Network is sponsoring the project, estimated to cost about $1 million and involve about 10,000 local workers.

"We have just begun but already we are one week behind schedule," said director Takayoshi Satoh, who was wearing a blue baseball cap with "Pyramid" written on the bill. "We must finish in 60 days."

The pyramid is being erected on the Giza Plateau in the shadow of the Great Pyramid of Cheops, which took 2.4 million stones and 200,000 men three decades to complete. The Japanese structure is one-seventh the size of the Great Pyramid, the largest ever built.

Unable to dig through the rock plateau, the Japanese gave up and settled for a foundation of sand and water — an unstable combination.

The Japanese are employing a mixture of modern and primitive methods. Flatbed trucks bring in 16 huge concrete blocks made at a local cement factory each day but their outer casing is hewn by hand from a quarry in nearby Helwan according to ancient stone-cutting ways.

It took an hour for the 20-man team to drag a cedar-wood sled — a copy of one in the Cairo Museum — across 30 yards, using rollers and plywood for tracks. On top of the sled sat the first limestone block.

Most of the workers live in Luxor, about 325 miles to the south and are experienced in archeological excavation. They shouted instructions to one another as they struggled with the block while a Japanese TV crew scurried along behind them. The network plans two 90-minute specials, chosen to commemorate its 25th anniversary in television.
