

Weizman off to Egypt to reopen peace talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel will send Defense Minister Ezer Weizman to Egypt on Thursday to reopen the direct Mideast peace talks that were suspended two months ago, Israeli radio and Egyptian sources said Wednesday.

The reports here and in Cairo indicated Israel was undertaking a new diplomatic initiative following

Prime Minister Menachem Begin's tense talks with Pres. Carter last week in Washington, where the U.S. desire for new Israeli accommodation with the Arabs was made manifest.

Still, Begin vowed in parliament Wednesday to continue resisting American pressure.

He then saw his supporters beat back opposition attempts to soften Israel's stand on the issue of occupied Arab lands — one of the major points of conflict between Israel and its American ally, and between the Jewish state and its Arab neighbors.

It was assumed Weizman would see Egyptian President Anwar Sadat but there was no word on how long he would stay, military sources said in Cairo. The defense minister last was in Egypt on Feb. 1 to discuss military arrangements in the occupied Sinai Desert.

Israeli radio reported that the Israeli cabinet decided Sunday to send Weizman back to Egypt, and the invitation from Egyptian War Minister Mohammed Abdel Ghani el-Gamassy reached Israel on Tuesday.

Carter meets Brazil head

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Pres. Carter arrived Wednesday in Brazil and told the four star general who heads its government that all nations must recognize their shortcomings in human rights and can use atomic power without adding to the world's nuclear arsenal.

Both are touchy subjects in this largest nation in South America, the second Carter has visited on his first trip to Latin America as president. Brazil has canceled military agreements with the United States because of Carter's human rights crusade.

Cloning hops along

MINNEAPOLIS — Hopping around Robert McKinnell's laboratory is proof that cloning works: a frog.

Small potatoes compared to the alleged cloning of a boy, described in a much-publicized book by David Rorvik to be published this week. But years from now, McKinnell's frog may be seen as part of a far more important cloning project: the control of cancer.

Study rates pedestrians

NEW YORK (AP) — Pedestrians in Tokyo and New York are fast and expert because they have to be, according to a study of street use in the two cities.

People in both cities like street life, according to William Whyte, who conducted the soon-to-be-released study with Hidetoshi Kato, a professor at Gakushuin University in Japan.

They are highly skilled pedestrians, fast walkers, adroit navigators and make very efficient use of limited spaces, he says.

In New York, he said, the best use of cars "is sitting on them."

As for walking speed, Whyte said citizens of Tokyo and New York are "in a class all by themselves."

Whyte also said New Yorkers are "terrible jaywalkers," bully-like with vehicles but extremely kind to fellow pedestrians.
