

Someone is trying to "zing me"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millionaire rice dealer Tongsun Park told House investigators Tuesday that despite the implications of a report found in Park's home, Speaker Thomas O'Neill never asked him for campaign contributions.

Park angrily complained that someone is "trying to zing me," and said, "Who knows who placed that document in my house?"

He repeated assertions that while he gave hundreds of thousands of dollars in campaign contributions on request he never did so as an agent of the Korean government. He said he never tried to use his contributions to "twist arms" or buy influence.

The document mentioning O'Neill's alleged request was seized by federal agents in Park's home last year after Park left the country for Korea.

Park denies O'Neill's requests

"He never made any request to make any contribution to anyone, including himself," Park said of O'Neill. Park did acknowledge that he paid for birthday parties for the Massachusetts Democrat, including one in 1974 which cost $4,000.

The document found in Park's home is hand-written in the Korean language and purports to be a report to Korean officials recommending that they take certain actions to increase the effectiveness of a visit to Korea of a U.S. congressional delegation. O'Neill headed the group of visiting congressmen.

The unsigned document stated that many of the congressmen on the trip had "contributed decisively" to electing O'Neill as House majority leader.

"And therefore, Mr. O'Neill specifically requested us to provide those congressmen with election campaign funds and their wives with necessary expenses," the document said.

"This will be an ideal opportunity to hand them the funds," it said. "But should it be impossible, we recommend that you pay them in the near future."

Chief counsel John Nields asked Park: "Is that true?"

Park replied: "No." O'Neill confirmed Tuesday that committee investigators have questioned him about the note.

"I don't know who authored it; where it was written, where it went out or who exercised control over it," O'Neill said. "I do know, however, it is self-serving and a total fabrication."

O'Neill said he never requested funds from Tongsun Park or the South Korean government.

"The allegation that I wish to reward a limited group that helped elect me majority leader is absurd — I had no opposition and was elected unanimously."

Park complained that the federal government violated his rights by searching his home and office and carting away documents.

Chicago 7 judge stirring controversy in new trial

CHICAGO (AP) — Nine years after he was widely criticized during the Chicago 7 trial, 82-year-old Judge Julius Hoffman is again stirring controversy — this time in the trial of Frank Walus, who could lose his citizenship if it is proven he was a World War II mass murderer.

At one point, the defense attorney accused the judge of falling asleep in court. The judge has threatened the lawyer with contempt citations.

And on Monday — before the defense started its case — Hoffman denied a defense motion for acquittal by saying the government's case "is clear and convincing and unequivocal that the defendant did commit war crimes, was a member of the Gestapo...and concealed information when he obtained U.S. citizenship."

That prompted the Chicago Sun-Times to report in a news story Tuesday that "Hoffman all but declared him guilty."

At another point, Hoffman expressed exasperation with Walus' halting testimony in both Polish and English — prompting Jeff

Lyon to describe Hoffman as having an "instinct for weakness that is like that of a mosquito seeking warm blood."

Walus, 55, was born in Germany of Polish parents and is charged with lying about alleged activities with the Gestapo when he obtained U.S. citizenship in Chicago in 1970, 11 years after moving to the United States.

To prove he lied on naturalization forms, the prosecution has tried to establish that Walus was a Nazi who helped the German Army kill Jews during the war. If found guilty, he could be deported.

On Tuesday, just before Walus went back to the witness stand, his attorney, Robert Korenkiewicz, told a reporter he was "beginning to get the feel of what happened during the Chicago 7 trial. Not a good feeling."

On Monday, Korenkiewicz had said he had the impression Hoffman had fallen asleep. He shouted to wake the judge and demanded a recess.

The defense says the charges are based on mistaken identity.
