THE ANANDA MARGA SOCIETY
PRESENTS
KING KONG
(1976 version) Here's your chance to see the recent multi-million dollar production of the classic gorilla-meets-girl romance! Not above making fun of Kong's bad breath or his "male chauvinism," this film is really a lot of fun, while establishing a few new twists to the original tale. The special effects are great, and this is a cinemascop print!

PRESENTS
THE MAN WHO FELL TO EARTH
David Bowie is perfectly cast as an unusual alien, with a complex plan to return to his own world. Director Nicholas Roeg (Waka-babout) uses brilliant photography to capture the exotic atmosphere that surrounds the strange visitor. The most subtle and thought-provoking of recent science fiction films.

Who's Afraid of Virginia
Wolf
The year was 1966. It was the year the American screen reached adulthood. It was the year "Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolf?" raged and stormed through thousands of audiences. One of the most scathingly honest American films ever made.
