

Caramels 'cause' crockpot crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Random House issued a recipe recall on Monday.

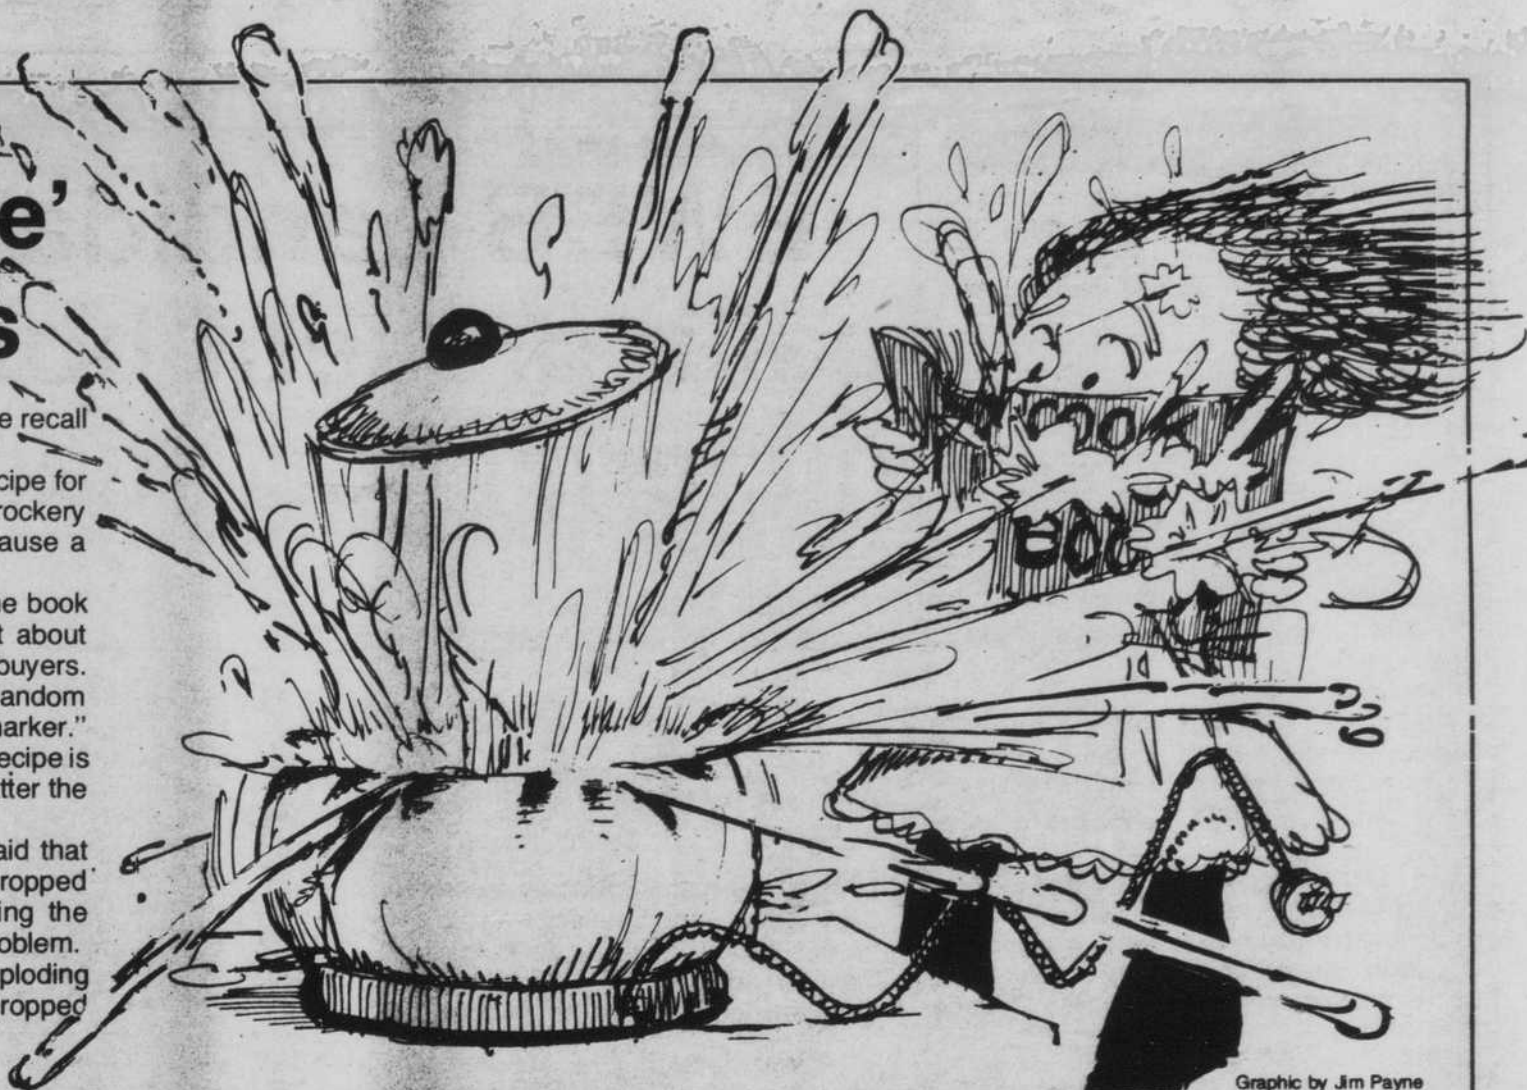

The publisher announced there was an error in a recipe for "Silky Caramel Slices" in its recent book, Woman's Day Crockery Cuisine by Sylvia Vaughn Thompson, which "could cause a serious explosion."

Random House said it had recalled all copies of the book from wholesalers and retail bookstores, but added that about 10,000 copies were already believed to be in the hands of buyers. It urged that the recipe, on page 230 and 231 of the Random House edition, "be obliterated with crayon or black ink marker."

According to a statement from the publisher, "If the recipe is followed, the condensed milk can could explode and shatter the lid and liner of the crockery cooker."

What happened? Spokesman William T. Loverd said that "somewhere along the line" an ingredient, water, got dropped from the recipe. A Random House employee was trying the recipe, noticed that it wasn't working and reported the problem.

Loverd said the company had not heard of any exploding crockery cookers or injuries. He said the recipe would be dropped from any future reprints.

JSU to observe independence

The Jewish Student Union will sponsor several activities in conjunction with Israel's thirtieth Independence Day anniversary, Thursday.

A falafel stand will be set up in the EMU breezeway from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. to serve the popular Middle Eastern fast food. There will be Israeli singing and folk dancing, also in the breezeway, and an Israeli photo exhibit is in the EMU Art Gallery (2nd Floor) all day.

Two law profs chosen by NEH

Two University Law School faculty members have been selected by the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) to participate in the 1978 summer Humanities Seminars for Law Teachers.

Margaret Radin, University assistant professor of law, will attend a six-week seminar on problems in legal and political philosophy at Harvard University.

And James Mooney, University associate professor of law, will spend six weeks at the University of Chicago studying law and American history.

THE PEOPLE . . .

In our complex insurance market there is a need for more than an ordinary sales effort. Our team possesses skills essential in meeting your insurance requirements.

ED REED

Ed has lived in Eugene, where he was born, all but five of his thirty-one years. He has been in the insurance-investment field for several years, after a varied background in business and finance. It is this varied background that has helped Ed to excel in the insurance field. Along with his many awards, he was also selected to C.I.R.A., which is a committee formed by the state to clean up certain marketing techniques used by some insurance salesmen and companies on the college campus today.

He has operated his own business, served as a major target account researcher for a large West Coast firm, and has helped promote certain craft items from the Saturday Market group on a national scale.

Athletics has always been important to Ed. He was all-state in high school while participating in track, and football. He played college ball and later played for a semi-professional football team.

His undergraduate and graduate work was done at the University of Oregon, where he graduated in marketing in 1971.

Ed has had advanced training in insurance, and has graduated from specialty schools concerning the advising of college men and women on insured-investment programs. He has also attended numerous seminars on insurance and investment programs. He is a member of many civic-minded groups, including the National Association of Life Underwriters. Past president of his church, Ed and his wife Kathy have two children, ages seven and nine.

ROBERT SATURLEY

Bob was born and raised in Tucson, Arizona and has lived in Eugene the past two years. He was first introduced to the Willamette Valley while traveling throughout the country five years ago. After his studies were completed at the University of Arizona, he moved to Greensboro, North Carolina. Bob continued his education at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, majoring in psychology.

He extended his studies by attending schools in Spain, Italy, and Switzerland. During this time he became involved in starting and operating two businesses. This experience has proven to be extremely valuable to him, as it has given Bob a diversified background to draw upon.

He entered the insurance business in 1976. In addition to courses in Investment Counseling and Life Property Planning, he has also completed formal courses in advanced insurance concepts to better serve the needs of his clients.

Bob is married, and has two sons.

DARLENE FORD

Darlene, born and raised in a small Oregon town west of the Portland area, has lived in Eugene for the past five years.

She entered the insurance business in 1976 after a varied background in business, art, and interior decorating.

Darlene's undergraduate work was done at Murray State University, Murray Kentucky, where she was elected Girl of the Year in 1974. Her outside interests include creative expression, design, and gourmet cooking.

Darlene has had advanced training in the insurance investment field and specialized training in helping college men and women with their needs.

DOUG BOWEN

Doug was born and raised in the Bay Area, and has spent the last five years in Eugene. He has always been active in outside activities and is a past Master Councilor of the DeMolay and a member of the National Honor Society. Doug entered the insurance field after his education at the University of Oregon, where he majored in political science and business. He has taken specialized courses on financial planning for college men and women at Kentucky Central's home office in Lexington, Kentucky. Along with this concentrated program, Doug attended a week-long seminar on clients' insurance needs in San Francisco.

Athletic all his life, Doug still stays in shape by playing city league football.
